Germany Must Pay War Reparations to Limit Of Power, Is U. S. View

Attitude of the American Government on Reparations to Be Expressed to French Envoy Viviani.

AMERICAN SYMPATHY FOR ALLIED COURSE

Administration Holds That Damages Against Germany Must Be Determined Justly.

BY JOHN GLEISSNER.
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, April 1.—Germany must admit her moral responsibility for the war, and must pay reparations to the limit of her ability.

This, it can be stated, is the attitude of the American government, to be communicated to Rene Viviani, special envoy of France now in the capital, if, indeed, it has not already been communicated.

Fears that America might assist Germany in evading her obligations, held in part, responsible for Viviani's mission, are considered absurd in highest quarters. No basis exists, it is learned, for the impression that the administration is unsympathetic to the attempts of the allied powers to compel Germany to make all restitution possible.

The information on the views of the administration is considered of deepest significance in indicating the future course of American policy. It reveals that this government, insofar as principles are concerned, will afford the allied powers "justice," sought by Viviani, in the form of moral support and co-operation in the allied course toward Germany.

America has been silent on the coercive measures undertaken by the allies against Germany. Her opposition to the reparations terms, while never officially communicated, are well known in European foreign offices. The military activities of France, and her maintenance of a huge standing army, have been generally disapproved, both by the present and former administration.

These things, and what Europe holds is the inescapable need of American co-operation in carrying out peace terms, indicated the possibility of a breach, which the visit of Viviani was seeking to close.

The administration holds, however, that the damages to be levied against Germany must be determined justly and fairly, and that reasonableness must rule. While agreeing in principle to the allied contentions, it does not follow that there is agreement on methods and decisions. The important point is that Germany may not seek aid and comfort from this country.

It is admittedly impossible that American support will be more than moral. But the allies consider this of highest importance. They court the favorable attitude of America, the leader of world opinion, and her friendly participation in world reconstruction.

President Harding's reluctance to bring back the American forces from the Rhine, following the reparations flare-up, and his hesitancy in defining an American foreign policy, are interpreted in some quarters as the logical carrying out of this policy. It is not desired to act in a manner which would weaken the allies, and encourage the Germans.

The Knox peace resolution, if introduced and passed, will be regarded simply as a means for permitting a resumption of relations between Germany and America. Whether Viviani will be able to delay a separate peace, or bring about a more favorable disposition toward the Versailles treaty and the league of nations, remains to be seen. It is believed unlikely that he will be able to do this, in view of the announcements of President Harding, and the fact that the ranks of the irreconcilables in the senate apparently are growing.

When talk of separate peace was renewed, and the opposition of America to reparation terms became known, Germany turned to this country in the hope of finding a friend who would support her attempted evasions. This attitude has been communicated to the American government indirectly, it can be stated, through the American representatives in that country. Direct proposals from Germany are of course impossible, and direct replies, since there is no formal intercourse because of the technical state of war are likewise impossible. The knowledge of the administration's views effectually clears the atmosphere in this direction.

Viviani called Friday on Senator Lodge at the latter's home. Lodge is chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. The nature of their conversation was not revealed, but it is presumed they discussed the possible participation of America in European affairs. Lodge has been closely in touch with French representatives since it became apparent the senate would reject the treaty.

Viviani called also at Vice President Coolidge's apartments, but found Coolidge out. A visit later was arranged.

FRANCO-TURKISH FIGHT REPORTED IN ASIA MINOR

London, April 1.—Fighting between the Turks and French, in which the latter lost twenty killed, is reported in messages from Cilicia, Asia Minor, forwarded by the Constantinople correspondent of the London Times.

The news appears to confirm persistent rumors of repudiation by the Turkish nationalist administration at Angora of the Franco-Turkish agreement concluded in London.

High Seas Revolt Of Reds Quelled By Sea Sickness

Ocean Billows Quickly Quench Revolutionary Fires on Soviet Ark.

New York, April 1.—The story of how seventy undesirables deported to Russia on the steamer Esthonia last February revolted on the high seas under the leadership of a woman, Rosa Oradovsky, was told here today by H. J. Skeffinger, an immigration commissioner of Boston, who returned from England on the Adriatic.

Conditions became so bad that the captain at one time considered wirelessing an American vessel for assistance. Instead, he had painted on the deck white "dead lines," beyond which the radicals were warned not to advance on peril of death. These lines were guarded by sailors armed with revolvers and ordered to shoot if their commands were disobeyed. Finally Neptune came to the captain's aid, a gale caused great billows in the ocean, and seasickness quelled the fires of revolution.

"A Tigress Woman."

The radicals, collected from various parts of the United States, sailed on February 1, under Mr. Skeffington's charge, for Danzig, Libau and Riga. The Esthonia had not proceeded far, Mr. Skeffington said, when the woman, whom he described as "a veritable tigress," assumed leadership of the undesirables and demanded better quarters than the third class accommodations allotted them.

"Our distinguished people are leaving your rotten country and we deserve first-class accommodations," she told the captain, who told her no other accommodations were available. Thereupon she went among 400 Russians, who were on the steamer returning to their homes, and speedily won them to her side.

"Agin All Governments."

The radicals and their sympathizers formed committees and waited upon the captain, who, in order to placate them as much as possible, allotted them sixteen staterooms in the second cabin. The woman was not satisfied, however, Mr. Skeffington said, and gathered seventeen faithful followers about her, proclaiming themselves anarchists.

The captain informed them that the ship flew the Danish flag and that his crew of 200 would take measures to resist any insurrection. Then the "dead lines" were drawn.

After the gale no more trouble was experienced. The feminine leader at one time, however, demanded of the captain that he send a wireless to the soviet representative in New York, but the captain refused. Arriving at Danzig, the reds proposed to send a greeting to the soviet govrnment of Russia, but the woman objected, saying she was against all governments.

In Boyhood Home Georgia Aviator Is Laid to Rest

Body of Lieutenant Coney Is Brought to Brunswick for Burial.

Brunswick, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—Hundreds of sorrowing friends of Lieutenant William Devoe Coney, the Brunswick aviator who died in Natchez, Miss., Wednesday, after the fatal accident of the week before, stood tonight at the Union depot silently awaiting the arrival of the train which at 7:30 o'clock, brought his body to the city.

A few short weeks ago, upon a Friday night and at the same hour, many of the crowd had stood waiting to meet him and to do him honor for his achievement in establishing a new transcontinental aeroplane flight record.

Greeted then with noise and loud acclamation, as he arrived—a hero of the air—Lieutenant Coney's final homecoming was in marked contrast. Hundreds who had cheered, reverently stood with bowed and bared heads, as the casket, draped with the flag of his country, was transferred to the waiting herse, to be conveyed to his grief-stricken home.

Telegrams Await Mother.

The heart-broken mother, who is bearing up bravely under her great sorrow, was met at the station by her close friends. Upon her arrival home, she found hundreds of telegrams from all parts of the country expressing sympathy, and lauding the achievements of her distinguished son.

Funeral services will be conducted at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon from St. Mark's Episcopal church by Rev. William Johnson, the rector.

As a mark of respect to the memory of Lieutenant Coney, and as a tribute to his achievement, all business activities in Brunswick will be suspended during the hour of the funeral, while hundreds attend the services.

Born Every Minute—But New Orleans Got More Than Her Share

New Orleans, April 1.—While officials of the secret service department of the New Orleans Railway and Light company were today trying to locate individuals alleged to be selling devices to cheat gas meters, they found that unidentified parties had been selling preferred stock in the league of nations.

According to the officials quite a number of stock certificates purporting to transfer title to specified shares in the league of nations were found in certain sections of the city largely populated by foreigners. All the certificates were beautifully engraved, with seals attached. In some instances the officials were unable to persuade the owners that they would never receive dividends, they declare.

"Sweet Mammas" Not His Creation, Says W. H. Little

Somebody's Pulled Costly April Fool Joke on Him, He Believes.

W. H. Little, of Decatur, head of a local tire concern, is either the victim of circumstances or of a practical joke, he told The Constitution Friday night. The odds are in favor of the latter, he believes.

The victimizing process may be officially laid at the door of the International Association of Sweet Mammas, and its companion organization, the International Association of Sweet Daddies, both of which organizations Friday swung into the ranks of the institutions undergoing federal probe.

It happened this way:

Mr. Little, according to his statement, inserted a want ad for a colored porter in a local paper. He was given a slip for presentation when he went to secure answers to his ad.

It seems that the walking delegates and organizers of the "Sweet Mammas" had opened a membership campaign in Atlanta and had mailed out to 25 pulchritudinous maidens the good news that they had been judged worthy of membership in the mystic order.

Mailed to His Box.

The tragic part of the matter was that the organizers took the liberty—at least that's the explanation Mr. Little gives—to request the lucky young ladies to fill in membership blanks and mail them to Little's box at the newspaper.

As a result, when Little went to get replies from prospective porters Friday, he was confronted with a postal inspector, who suspected that all might not be in lawful order about the "Sweet Mammas" and that an effort to obtain funds by fraud might act as a joker in the otherwise serene deck of the somewhat amagingly named association.

"I believe that some person did this thing as a joke,' Mr. Little told The Constitution. "If that's the case he certainly wins the cast iron hoslery for thinking up comical hoaxes. I'll never hear the last of the kidding, and I guess I'll be known from now on as 'Sweet Daddy.'"

Little also explained that the number of his box was 12, while the "Sweet Mamma" communications were mailed to box 21. It may have been the mysterious working of fate that allotted him the role of the "goat" in the little comedy, he opined.

Not Guilty, He Says.

At any rate, and regardless of how it happened, he stoutly maintains that he knows nothing about the organization and regards the matter of possible fraud as "preposterous."

"I might have been interested in becoming a member, had the chance been afforded me," he said, "but as for acting as organizer for the association, regardless of its many attractive features—never."

Little also explained the finding of multigraphing equipment and a typewriter in his office—which it was thought might afford a clew to eventually enlighten the public as to the activities of the international associations both of "Sweet Mammas" and "Sweet Daddies"—by saying that his firm, a nationally known one, handled all southern business from his office and that it was but natural that it should use mimeographs and a popular make of typewriter.

"I dare say they could have found the same things in almost any office in town,' he said. "It was also said that the postal men found some memorandums connecting me with the affair. This is an absolute lie."

After being questioned by federal agents of the postal department Friday, Mr. Little was lucky enough to retain his freedom and to be able to give his version of the affair to The Constitution.

The investigation began Friday after one of the young women who had been invited to join the society presented the letter she received to the postoffice inspectors.

Society of Sweet Mammas.

The letter which she exhibited was multigraphed, was headed "The International Society of Sweet Mammas" and began:

"Do you become rather bored sometimes with the ordinary, commonplace routine of the average daily life? A very rich and kindly old gentleman out Peachtree way died last month and left $2,000 in his will to found and develop an organization as listed above and to be composed of 25 of the most attractive young ladies of the city with a corresponding number of young men, providing 25 can be found who fulfill the exacting requirements laid down by the eccentric old gentleman whose kindness and whimsical fancy made this interesting organization possible.

"It is no flattery," said the letter, "to say you should feel highly complimented in being chosen one of the 25 young ladies, as it was extremely difficult to locate this number who could come up to the old gentleman's specification as to beauty, personality, etc. Nevertheless, 25 have been selected and you are one of them.

"I can truthfully say," it was added, "this organization should prove a wonderful source of romantic adventure to you, for no 'Sweet Daddies'" will be admitted except those who are wealthy, of high social position, and capable of making life extremely interesting for the 'Sweet Mamas.'"

Membership Requirements.

With another earnest request that the recipient of the letter join the order, the letter closed and was signed with a rubber stamp bearing the name of L. C. Pierson. An enclosure set forth the following requirements for membership:

"1. Must not be over 23 years old.

"2. Must have high school or college education.

"3. Must be worth at least $10,000 in his own rights.

"4. Must own an auto.

"5. Must have an established reputation for honesty, trustworthiness and dependability.

"6. Must be possessed of a good personality and have made excellent progress in the commercial world.

"7. Must be a good dander (dancer).

"8. In short—must be thoroughly equipped to show his 'sweet Mama' the most remarkably adventurous time of her life.

"Would you like to know such a young man?" asked the letter. "Here are brief descriptions of the two who have qualified thus far."

Descriptions of some of those who were said by the unusual communication to belong to the masculine auxiliary, viz, "The Sweet Daddies," were like this:

"Age 22, tall, dark black hair, humorous blue eyes, excellent personality, sole heir to two hundred thousand dollar estate in West Virginia. 'Frat' man. Owns Cole Eight.

"Age 23, medium height, lustrious black hair, tender dark brown eyes, rather reserved, but possessed of

GRAHAM WRIGHT NAMED TO ASSIST SOLICITOR BRAND

Assistant Attorney-General Will Be Only Representative of State at Trial of Williams.

SEEK REPRESENTATIVE FOR NEGRO IN CASE

Wright Takes Part in Trial in Covington in Order to Be Prepared for Jasper County Probe.

With the trial of John S. Williams, under indictment for murder in connection with the killing of eleven negroes on and near his Jasper county farm, set for Tuesday in Covington, chief developments in the case were centered in Atlanta Friday night when it was learned that Governor Hugh M. Dorsey has designated Assistant Attorney-General Graham Wright as the only assistant of Solicitor A. M. Brand in the presecution next week and that negotiations for a prominent Augusta lawyer to represent Clyde Manning are under way.

Both the governor and Solicitor-General Brand denied the reports of Friday afternoon that the former was attempting to secure a well-known Georgia attorney to assist in the prosecution. The solicitor had already requested the assistance of Mr. Wright, it was stated, while the assistant attorney-general had also informed the chief executive that it was his desire to participate in the Newton county trial owing to his interests in the Jasper county investigations.

Governor Grants Request.

Since the Newton county charge of murder against Williams will be the same as advanced against him when Mr. Wright appears before the Jasper county grand jury April 11, he informed the governor that he would be placed in a better position to proceed with his prosecution if allowed to participate in the Covington trial. Governor Dorsey, accordingly, granted the request of the assistant attorney-general and Solicitor Brand.

While no official announcement has been made, it is understood that William Howard, a prominent Augusta attorney, is being requested to defend Manning, the negro whose confession implicated Williams in the murders. Mr. How-

WILD WEST FIGHT IN HEART OF CITY

Bystander Wounded, But Man With Revolver and Intended Victim Make Escape From Scene.

W. A. Walker, a young white man of 136 Washington street, was shot in the right leg about midnight Friday night, at the corner of Alabama and Broad streets, by an unknown assailant who, it is understood, was aiming at another man. The intended victim of the shooting, according to witnesses, hid behind a mail box and escaped injury, Walker being struck as he stood reading a newspaper.

One of the five bullets fired passed through the hat of Private Andes M. Chapman, stationed at Camp Jessup, with the motor transport corps. He was standing beside Walker. The bullet entered the back of his cap, passed through the inside band of the hat and emerged without touching his head.

When the assailant's gun was empty, the intended victim pursued him across the viaduct and had nearly caught him when he suddenly stopped the chase. The pistol shots attracted a crowd, which chased both men, but neither was captured. Walker was taken to Grady hospital with painful injuries.

There were many persons in the neighborhood of the shooting when the attack was made, but none could give a description of the would-be slayer, other than to say that he was a white man. No fight preceded the shooting, and there was no indication of trouble until the five pistol shots, in rapid succession, startled the neighborhood.

Walker could give no explanation of the shooting. He said he was leaning against a lamp post reading a newspaper, when the bullets struck him. The unidentified man, at whom the shots were aimed, dodged behind the shelter of a mail box, and was the first to take up the chase when the assailant's gun was empty. After nearly catching his man, he suddenly abandoned the pursuit and disappeared, and the crowd which ran after him was not able to corner either man.

That the shooting might have been the outgrowth of a long standing feud was suggested by an exclamation of one of the men standing nearby as the first shot rang out, to be quickly followed by four others.

"You knew all day that this was going to happen!" an unidentified man cried to some one standing near him, as both leaped back from the line of fire of the man across the street, a police officer stated after the affair.

Children's Flowers Will Cover Grave Of John Burroughs

Pougekeepsie, N. Y., April 1.—All the little school children in the hamlet of West Park, where John Burroughs lived and studied nature for almost half a century, will march to his funeral next Saturday, each bearing flowers plucked in the school yard nearby. Had death not claimed the famous naturalist last Tuesday, the children would have carried their fragrant gifts to Riverby, the Burroughs home by the Hudson river, next Sunday, his 84th birthday.

For years the boys and girls of the neighborhood have gathered today on each anniversary of Mr. Burroughs' birth to hang garlands of flowers about his photograph in the village school, and then visit his home to learn more of the birds and beasts, rocks and rivers, flowers and weeds.

This year the likeness of the renowned lover of the outdoors is draped with the black cloth of sorrow. The flowers will be placed on his bier, and on his birthday they will rest upon his grave at Roxbury in the Catskill mountains.

NATIONAL OFFICES OF BUILDERS' BODY LOCATED IN CITY

Headquarters of National Association of Builders' Exchanges Established in Rhodes Building.

BUILDING RESUMPTION AIM OF ASSOCIATION

Sends Resolution Broadcast, Suggesting Remedies for Conditions That Hinder Construction.

Headquarters for the United States of the National Association of Builders' Exchanges was Monday established in Atlanta at 216 Rhodes building, and Friday morning the organization mailed out to member exchanges throughout the country a resolution of the association aimed at a nation-wide resumption of building.

Pointing out conditions that are hindering building and emphasizing remedies for these ills, the organization, of which Charles W. Bernhardt, well-known contractor of Atlanta, is president, and Earl F. Stokes, just arrived in the city from Erie, Pa., is secretary, calls upon chambers of commerce and all community organizations not to enter into any agreements which will "directly or indirectly tend to the injury of the public or to unnecessarily increase construction costs," The same organizations are made recipients of an appeal to do all within their power to "secure a restoration of activities in the construction industry upon a sound, economic basis."

National Problem.

The document first calls attention to the fact that "stabilization of a properly deflated basis of many important elements in building construction, such as steel, cement, lumber, brick, fuel, transportation, etc., requires both local and national solution," and then goes into means toward bringing about this end.

Manufacturers, producers and distributors of building materials are urged by the organization to put into effect such further deflation of prices as may be possible at this time, and to inform the public in detail on increased costs over which the manufacturers or distributors may have no control.

Readjustment of labor wage scales upon a fair basis to dealers, builders, the public and labor itself, is also urged, with the additional recommendation that efficiency be increased by elimination of disputes and strikes of all kinds, thus making possible "maximum production with minimum expense."

Financial Interests.

Financial interests accustomed to make loans for building purposes are called upon to do their full share towards stimulating construction by accepting a properly proportionate recession in profits and making liberal provisions in all lines of their operations.

Savings banks and similar institutions should devote the maximum percentage of funds in their keeping to purchasing local mortgages, it is declared, and transportation concerns are asked to proceed as fast as possible with their construction work and to reduce rates on transportation of construction materials.

Fuel, like transportation, the resolution declares, forms an important item in construction costs, and mine owners and operators are urged to improve production and marketing methods, to eliminate waste and adjust labor prices to accord with present conditions to the end that fuel costs may be substantially reduced.

Public Economy.

"The government of the United States," the resolution continues, "and its many agencies, the respective states and the several subdivisions thereof, are urged to eliminate all unnecessary expense, secure the greatest efficiency from these engaged in necessary functions, and to practice the greatest public economy in order that there may be a material reduction in the tax burden which all must bear, a reduction necessary before there can be a substantial, sound and permanent industrial prosperity, including that of the construction industry. VEIL OF MYSTERY SHROUDING BUNCO SYNDICATE PROBE Throng of Witnesses Put Through Inquiry Mill, But Evidence Given Not Divulged by Solicitor.

BOYKIN IS SATISFIED WITH PROGRESS MADE

Plennie Miner Goes to Richmond on Case and J. O. Ewing Is Reported on His Way to Chicago.

A veil of secrecy was thrown around the activities of the solicitor-general's office yesterday. A throng of witnesses continued to pour through the inquiry mill. No indication was given as to the nature of their evidence. Plennie Miner, chief investigator of the office, departed from Atlanta during the day. It was announced that he was on his way to Richmond, Va., to conduct an inquiry relative to the bunco probe. J. O. Ewing, attorney, accused in the Floyd Woodward letter as being the "fixer" for the confidence syndicate, was reported in Chicago, seeking certain evidence to refute the Woodward charges.

Solicitor Boykin was apparently well satisfied with the situation. "We have more than a week in which to assemble the evidence we will present to the investigating committee of city council," he said. "By that time I am confident that we will be able to show to every right-thinking man and woman that I haven't been making charges that are without foundation.

Many Witnesses Coming.

"Some of our witnesses will have to travel hundreds of miles to appear before the council investigation, but I am sure that their revelations will be well worth the energy we have expended in getting them here. In the meantime I am making every effort to clear up all work now before the grand jury so that I can be able to devote my entire time to the council inquiry."

Opening of the investigation was definitely fixed at 7:30 o'clock on the evening of April 11 at the city council chamber. Walter Sims, chairman of the committee, announced that the committee would meet each evening thereafter until all the evidence had been heard. He did not anticipate that it would take up more than a week's time.

An ordinance, providing for an appropriation of $1,000 to defray the expenses of the investigation has been approved by the finance committee of council and will be adopted at the next meeting. It is explained that this money is needed to pay witnesses and other expenses incidental to the hearings.

During the day the committee of citizens named by the Piedmont hotel mass meeting issued a card explaining the need for the $20,000 war chest, which is being raised to aid the solicitor-general.

Card From Committee.

The card reads:

"The committee desires to give to every citizen interested, an opportunity to contribute something to this fight for law and order. We might secure this fund through large subscriptions, but it would be very much more effective should the amount we have called for be made up from subscriptions, everybody contributing.

"It has been asked why this committee called for $20,000. In addition to counsel fees, it should be understood that the ramification of the bunco ring which Solicitor-General Boykin has disclosed, cover transactions over a period of four years. This ring is a national organization of wire-tappers and professional confidence men. It is the branch of the syndicate which has unlimited means, which has spent

Fake 'Divorce Mill' Had Staff of Girls For 'Co-Respondents'

Twenty-Eight Alleged Bogus Divorces Sold by Man Sought by Police.

White Plains, N. Y., April 1.—At least twenty-eight alleged bogus divorces and annullments are known to have been sold by Herbert F. Miller, now being sought as the alleged operator of a "divorce mill" in Manhattan, Assistant District Attorney Walter Ferris announced today.

District Attorney Lee Davis said that a clerk employed by Miller had given him further evidence and that indictments would be sought against Miller on charges of forgery in the second degree, perjury and the misdemeanor of practicing law in this state without being admitted to the bar here.

The clerk told newspaper men that Miller had a staff of ten girls to act as "co-respondents" when the fake divorces were framed up.

"A lot of people who came to Miller for divorces," he added, "agreed to help him conduct this fake system."

The clerk said he did not know positively whether there was a chain of "divorce mills" throughout the country.

Word was received here that officials and clerks in the undefended divorce part of the Brooklyn supreme court were convinced that Miller has been working the same game in Brooklyn. An investigation, it was stated, will be made at once of all the undefended divorces granted in Brooklyn in the last two years.

According to one clerk, there have been several inquiries during the last few days from persons asking for "lawyer Miller." When asked why they wanted to see "Lawyer Miller" they invariably became evasive but seemed worried.

Ten Reported Missing When Passenger Boat Sinks After Collision

THOMAS IS FREED FROM THE TOWER BY GRAND JURORS

Slayer of Fred Thompson Given His Liberty, After Jury Fails to Return True Bill.

FOURTH MAN IN CAR NOT YET IDENTIFIED

No Evidence to Disprove Thomas' Story Given by Other Men in the Automobile.

J. C. Thomas, held as the slayer of Fred G. Thompson, was freed from the Tower Friday afternoon after the Fulton county grand jury returned a no bill in the case. The entire case has been under investigation by the jury for the past four days, and many witnesses were examined to learn the truth of the killing.

According to the statement made by Thomas when he gave himself up, the day after the cutting to death of Thompson near Lakewood, on the night of the homicide, four men, Fred Thompson, Ed Shute, Homer Pitts and a fourth man whom the police have not been able to identify, called at the lunch stand operated by Thomas and Mrs. L. M. Ayers, on Decatur street, and posing as officers, took Thomas into the automobile on the pretense that they wanted him to make good a bad check, and were going to take him to police station.

The visit of the men came closely upon the receipt by Thomas of several letters signed the "Eyes of 1,000 Real Men," and calling upon him to stop neglecting his family.

Thompson Cut to Death.

Thomas further related that the men drove immediately to Lakewood, took him out of the automobile and demanded to know why he had not complied with the request made in the letters. He then stated that the men attacked him with a knife, and he drew his own knife and started in to defend himself.

Thompson was killed, Pitts badly cut on the left arm and hand, and the fourth man was said to have been cut. Shute remained in the car, according to Thomas.

Thomas went to the Tower the following day and surrendered. The coroner's jury, following the inquest, ordered him held for the grand jury.

Story Is Not Disproved.

It is understood that no evidence to disprove Thomas' story was given by the other men in the car, who claimed "that the dead man and the mysterious fourth man, who was a friend of the dead man, and whom they did not know," took Thomas to the woods for what reason, they stated, they did not know.

Mrs. Ayers and J. H. Norton, who found the man's body after he had received an anonymous telephone call, to the effect that a friend was dying in the woods near Lakewood, were witnesses before the jury.

Mrs. Ayers made the statement at the courthouse that she was fairly certain Norton was one of the men who, she said, came to Thomas' store in Decatur street on the evening of the killing to get Thomas. Norton said he could prove by four men that he was at a lodge meeting on the night of the killing.

ALLIES PROTEST HAPSBURG RETURN

Austria Grants Safe Conduct for Charles' Return to Switzerland, After Note From Entente.

Paris, April 1.—A dispatch to the East Europe agency from Budapest says former Emperor Charles, accompanied by two British officers, has left Steinamanrer for Switzerland. There is no confirmation of this report from other sources.

Vienna, April 1.—Austria has granted a safe conduct to former Emperor Charles to go to Switzerland, not only in principle, but in fact. The British, French and Italian ministers called upon Chancellor Mayr this morning and presented the protest of the powers against a Hapsburg restoration.

While the attitude of the entente had been known, the incident is regarded here as being meant to strengthen the hands of the government in case of now unlooked for eventualities.

Overnight developments presaged an early curtain on the last act of the drama of Steinamanger, and the way is all prepared for the former emperor's departure. Reports from

Check of the Survivors Leaves Seven Passengers and Three of Crew Unaccounted for.

STEAMER "GOVERNOR" RAMMED BY FREIGHTER

Within Sight and Sound of Pacific Coast Lighthouse, Vessel Disappears Beneath Waves.

Seattle, Wash., April 1.—Seven passengers and three members of the crew of the steamer Governor, sunk off Point Wilson early today, were missing tonight after a check of survivors.

The Governor was sunk in a collision with the steamer West Hartland.

The West Hartland, which arrived here today with survivors, struck the Governor in a slanting direction, according to ship's officers, crumpling the freighter's bow and cutting the passenger boat almost in two from the starboard side.

According to passengers the West Hartland partly supported the Governor, with her nose driven deeply into the Governor's side, but as soon as the freighter backed clear, the passenger vessel began to sink.

United States Probe Begins.

The department of justice and the United States steamboat inspection service have corralled the surviving passengers and crews of both vessels and are taking their testimnoy in an attempt to fix the blame for the collision.

Officers and sailors of both ships have been called into the offices where the double inquiry is going on and it was whispered among the witnesses that startling information as to the causes of the wreck has been obtained by the government officers.

The Pacific Steamship company, which ran both vessels, is unable to account for Mrs. W. W. Washburn, of Neash Bay, Wash., and her two daughters, Olene, 8, and Sadie, 10; R. Sheck, San Francisco; J. Clancy and Alfred Kaseau, of Los Angeles, and W. Brusoma, address unknown. They are believed to have perished with Grant Christensen, G. N. Aubution and H. Webster, members of the crew.

Was on Course.

The collision occurred less than a mile off shore, directly opposite the Point Wilson lighthouse near Port Townsend, in the strait of Juan de Fuca. The Governor is believed to lie in about 25 fathoms of water. According to Purser Holzer, the Governor was on her course, it being customary to steam close to shore in making the Point Wilson light.

Ship's officers declared the night was fairly clear with a light fog overhanging. William G. Thomas, keeper of the Point Wilson lighthouse, who was in his tower at the time of the collision, said he plainly heard the crash and could see the two ships together from his window.

Purser Holzer saved only the log and the pay roll of the ship's papers. Other records, including the passenger list, went down in the purser's safe, which also contained a considerable amount of money, Holzer said.

Survivors in Blankets.

An anxious crowd gathered at the pier here as the West Hartland, her deck crowded with a huddled throng of survivors in a motley of blankets and borrowed clothing, warped into the slip. A cold drizzling rain added to the misery of those on the big freighter's deck throughout most of the slow journey from the scene of the collision. Few of them had been able to escape completely clothed. A number were in their night clothes and some were wrapped in blankets, lent by members of the West Hartland's crew.

Neither Captain E. P. Bartlett, of the Governor, nor Captain John Al-

wen, of the West Hartland, would discuss the affair, except to say order was maintained on the sinking vessel. Mrs. R. H. Williams, who is blind, was given special care by the crew, her daughter, Mrs. H. Weisner, of Summer, Wash., said. They were accompanied by their husbands. "The men of the crew were simply wonderful," said Mrs. Weisner. "They put a life preserver on mother, carried her up the ladder, and put us in boats."

Several Children Saved.

Grant Christensen, second assistant engineer of the Governor, is believed by the ship's officers to have gone to his death when he insisted on going down to the engine room to see if he could keep the ship's engines running.

Several children, at least two of them babes in arms, were included among the survivors and were brought off the West Hartland swathed in blankets.

POLICE SINGING CLASS TO MEET NEXT SUNDAY

Arguments of jurists, banging of gavels, drone of voices and other sounds habitual to the courtroom at the police station on Decatur street, will be replaced by the strains of music when the reorganized Atlanta Police Singing class will give its second free public concert in the courtroom at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

A quartet of singers not connected with the police department has been secured to assist in the concert, and to lead the singing. This quartet consists of Professors C. R. Mullins, Homer F. Morris, J. M. Henson and A. R. Walton. Besides these singers a number of trained vocalists have volunteered their assistance, and will sing solo selections. E. C. Hudson is president of the reorganized singing class, which gave its first recital since being re-formed late in March, at which time a large crowd was present. The public is invited to the concert next Sunday, and a good attendance is expected.

YOUNG MEN CHARGED WITH DRY VIOLATION

Leslie Craig and Herbert Bush, two young white men, were held under $500 bond each Friday on charges of violating the state prohibition law, following their arrest Thursday night by County Policemen Cates and Head. They were apprehended, it was reported, in an automobile containing 36 gallons of whisky on the Mason and Turner road.

20 Cents Quart Now Retail Rate Made by Dairies

Statements of March Bills Show Drop of Five Cents in Price of Milk.

For the first time since war prices attained full momentum, local dairymen and milk dealers yesterday mailed statements billing patrons for milk at the rate of 20 cents per quart, which rate represented a drop of 5 cents per quart.

So far as could be ascertained by The Constitution, the milk price in Atlanta seems to be fixed by all dealers at 20 cents, though it was found that in a few instances dairies put the cut of 5 cents into effect prior to March 1.

Up to that time, it is learned, a large majority of the dairies were charging 25 cents per quart, but on March 1 prices generally suffered the drop, which represents a 20 per cent reduction.

The general tendency of the public to curtail buying wherever possible seems to have lessened the demand for milk to an extent, and at the same time feed and labor prices eased off materially.

These causes, together with the fact that the advent of spring is making grass plentiful, are attributed by dealers to have precipitated the decline.

TWO NEGROES DEAD IN WAKE OF STORM

Tornado Wrecks Homes and Injures Two Persons in Worth County, After Leaving Albany.

Albany, Ga., April 1.—(Special.) That two persons are dead as the result of the tornado at Albany Thursday afternoon became known when the body of Jerry Dallas, negro employee of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical company, was Friday morning found covered by the debris of the wrecked plant.

John Wesley McCoy, a negro carpenter, met death when the storm wrecked a building upon which he was at work. Two of the injured, Harry Bennt and Laidrick Shaw, both negroes, are so critically injured that it is feared they might not recover.

Strikes Worth County.

After leaving Albany the storm struck again in Worth county, three miles southwest of Oakfield, wrecking several homes and outhouses and uprooting trees. Two persons were injured.

George Reynolds and his son were severely but not fatally injured when their home was blown from its foundation. The home of Thomas Howard, Rone Reynolds and Lee Pagett were also wrecked but the occupants escaped injury.

Several negro houses were demolished, their occupants receiving slight injuries.

Relief Measures.

Measures for the relief of scores of persons rendered homeless as the result of the destruction ..hich marked the path of the tornado have been taken by the local chapter of the Red Cross, of which S. B. Brown is chairman, and the situation is considered well in hand. Most of the people rendered homeless by the tornado were welcomed into the homes of neighbors.

Upon receipt yesterday of information of the disaster here, Harry Hopkins, manager of the southern division of the American Red Cross, with headquarters in Atlanta, got in telephone communication with Mr. Brown, by way of Jacksonville.

Wires Repaired.

Direct telephone and telegraph communication with Albany from Atlanta was interrupted yesterday as the result of the storm. This slight impairment of the services, however, has been overcome both by the telegraph and telephone companies.

The greatest financial loss in the windstorm which struck the northern section of Albany Thursday afternoon was in damaged industrial plants. The residential section also suffered heavily. The plant of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical company is said to have suffered the heaviest loss of industrial companies, the loss to this concern amounting to about $80,000.

Property damage was estimated to total at from $200,000 to $300,000.

SHIP BOARD OKAYS REDUCTION IN PAY

Ship Operators Required to Reach Agreement With Men Before Cut Is Made, However.

Washington, April 1.—The shipping board today tentatively approved a reduction in wages for seamen employed on American vessels on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts after a conference between Chairman Benson and representatives of the American Steamship Owners' association.

A specific plan outlining changes in hours and reductions in wages was presented by the steamship men, but the board only expressed its views on the general situation and did not approve any specific proposals.

The steamship operators were told, Chairman Benson said after the conference, that the board realized necessity for a readjustment involving wage reductions, the restrictions of overtime and modification of some existing regulations. The board insisted, however, Chairman Benson said, that the steamship owners must work out the readjustment with the men before the board could give its approval.

Agreements between the various classes of seamen, except masters and mates, expire May 1, and it is expected the steamship owners will have negotiated new contracts for the board's approval by that date. Agreements with the masters and mates expire August 1.

Approximately 60,000 men, officials said, will be affected, including the marine engineers, seamen, firemen, cooks and stewards and wireless operators, on all American ships operating out of Atlantic and Gulf ports.

Adjustment of the wage controversy or the Pacific coast is expected to follow and is dependent on the Atlantic and Gulf negotiations.

The steamship owners were said to have expressed themselves as in accord with Chairman Benson's ideas and indicated that no action would be taken pending conferences with the seamen.

CHARGE VIOLATIONS OF 'BLUE SKY LAWS'

Nat L. Royster and Van C. Pate Are Indicted by Grand Jury.

Nat L. Royster and Van C. Pate, publishers of the Dixie Motors News and Southern Picture News, have been indicted by the Fulton county grand jury on the charge of violating the "Blue Sky Laws" in that they sold stock of the Regional Press, incorporated, which publishes these two magazines without having taken out a license as required by law. One thousand dollar bond was fixed in each case following the return of the indictment.

According to T. B. Conner, examiner for the state securities commission, Royster and Pate sold Mrs. Louise Dumas $2,000 worth of stock in The Regional Press. He stated that Mrs. Dumas had received $5,000 damages for the death of her husband in a wreck about a year ag e indictment sets out that the men sold Mrs. Dumas the stock on December 28, 1920, without having taken out a license as required by the act of the legislature August 17, 1920.

A marine grass found extensively in Japanese waters yields a fiber which when mixed with cotton, both strengthens and cheapens thread, which is usually made of cotton alone.

Strother Proves That Elevators Are Unnecessary

10,000 People See Him Defy All Laws Relating to Gravitation.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

Bill Strother, famous "human spider," defied the laws of gravity Friday night by blazing a new trail up the Marietta street side of the seventeen-story Citizens and Southern Bank building before a crowd estimated at between ten and fifteen thousand spectators.

Strother, who hails from the little village of Stantonsburg, N. C., where he got his start climbing rail fences, made his appearance at the building on schedule time, or exactly at 7:30 o'clock, and without wasting much time no ceremonies, proceeded, five minutes later, to take his life in his own hands, as he said, by doing something that the thousand and one others considered impossible.

"What kind er flowers you want, Bill?" a shrill voice yelled from the seething mob; but the "spider" had already explained that the benefits from his health-flirtation act were go to the wounded soldiers' fund, so he yelled back:

"Give 'Em to Legion."

"Give 'em to the American Legion's wounded soldiers—I don't like flowers. I can't smell!"

He then gave his audience the first real thrill of the night. Following his way along the third story cornice of the building by the aid of a powerful spotlight, he continued up the center section of the wall two stories higher, where he nerved himself for the hair-raising feat of standing on his head—both hands and feet dangling free in the air. This he accomplished by raising the window in his path and balancing himself first against the half-closed aperture, then swinging free of all support save the reversed portion of his head. The feat was approved by the unrestrained voices of ten thousand onlookers, scattered as far down as three blocks away.

The climber seemed to enjoy the rumble of applause, for either intentionally or from sheer recklessness he permitted his body to readjust itself with such a careless twist that it looked as if he was doomed for a nose dive—the crowd directly below scattered. But he was either fooling them or luck was with him, for he came up smiling.

Just then someone yelled from a window across the street:

"You'll never read the story about you in the morning paper, Bill!"

Strother, who by this time was well on his way toward the sixth stop of his journey, halted in the very middle of the tracks.

Strother Makes Answer.

"We never read the best stories about any of us, so I'm no worse off than the rest!" he shouted back, releasing one hand for megaphone purposes.

About two minutes later he offered the crowd a little more amusement—this time of a different nature, however.

It wasn't in the "Spider's" original schedule to stop at the seventh floor, but upon reaching the window of that division something changed his mind. The "Spider" was just fixing to continue his web by traveling on when either a blonde or brunette "fly"—the spectators couldn't tell from the ground—who, perhaps, was some pretty "steno," attracted Bill's immediate attention by changing the center of gravity to the interior of the office.

Bill pulled he shade down behind him.

However, it was the "Spider" in the "fly's" parlor, which was a bit against the established rule of things, so for some reason Bill made a quick exit, in which he forgot his hat, and hurriedly continued on his way. Bill didn't stop any more after this until he reached the tenth stanza of his song, where the stop-watch was brought into play, showing that ten stories had been scaled in eight minutes.

Near His Mascot.

"Bill was now within easy hearing distance of his mascot, young Vernon Sues, the 13-year-old boy who was arrested Thursday night following orders from Washington, where it is claimed he ran away from his parents, and who was released Friday morning after a telegram from his mother to the "spider" authorized the latter to act as guardian for the kid.

The kid yelled from the top of the building:

"Want a cigarette, Bill?"

Bill used the cigarette for a chaser, for some one in the office brought out refreshments. It was a brown, hippocket size bottle that looked like old times, but Bill turned his back on the crowd for the first time, and the wind was blowing in the wrong direction, so no further evidence was to be had. The glare of the spotlight reflected against the bottle and a stampede was almost started down below.

Whatever the contents of the flask were they appeared to offer the necessary stimulation, for Bill made a non-stop flight from there to the top of the building, where he perfected his title of "chief-dare-devil," by posing in a vertical position on the outmost extremity of the roof, with his head the centrifugal point of balance. With this, Bill bid the crowd good night.

Officials of the local American Legion, under whose auspices the exhibition was given, expressed themselves as pleased with the collection taken up, and stated that the "spider," who already has a record for climbing most of the important buildings of the country, has consented to remain in Atlanta over Monday, when he will add another link to his web, by climbing the Winecoff hotel at 5 o'clock that afternoon.

CITY WATER WAGON AND CAR IN DUEL; AUTO IS WORSTED

A mule belonging to the city had two of its legs broken, a city water-wagon was badly damaged and an automobile was torn to pieces and a negro woman was reported to have been badly hurt when a speeding car said to have been filled with negroes crashed into the wagon at Marietta street and North avenue Friday night.

Work was in progress on the railroad crossing at this point and the street had been dug up. The speeding car, according to reports, ran into the rough place, got out of control and hit the wagon. The occupants of the car escaped, but bystanders said one negro woman was badly injured.

FRENCH HINT LOSS ON U. S. PURCHASE

Warm Debate in French Senate on Result of Deal for American Army Stocks.

Paris, April 1.—The disposal by the French government of American army stocks was discussed in the senate last night during debate on the budget. Senator Pierre Berger demanded information of the government as to whether many automobiles had not disappeared from American camps taken over by the French authorities.

"That is not disputed," replied Andre Paisant, undersecretary of the ministry of commerce, who was charged with the sale of the American stocks.

Senator Berger, continuing, said he had heard of new ambulances being sold for three or four thousand francs at Camp Gievres on one day and being resold in Paris the next day for ten thousand or twelve thousand francs.

Secretary Replies.

Senator Berger continued his criticism of the French officials, after which M. Paisant replied at length, but with many interruptions and questions, saying in part:

"We bought the American stocks for $400,000,000, the dollar being calculated at seven francs, it was understood payment was to be made in ten years, bearing interest, on the exchange rate of the dollar the day payment is due. We have sold from the stocks 2,556,000,000 francs' worth, so that, considering payment is to be made 10 years hence, it is quite possible to suppose the dollar will be at the normal exchange rate or near it. We have also about 1,200,000,000 francs' worth still to sell.

"The camps were transferred to us without detailed inventories."

Numerous Errors.

The Americans reserved the right to take from the camps whatever was necessary for their existence until their departure from France and, consequently, the stores were diminished. Besides, there were numerous errors. Thus, on the one hand, we counted upon 75,000 automobiles, but only 25,000 were found. Of these 25,000, 1,500 have been stolen. The guilty one, an officer, has been condemned. There you have the facts."

The officer responsible for the thefts, as brought out by questions, was a Frenchman, M. Paisant, after some further explanations, said:

"I have just spoken of a theft which I have been obliged to allude to with much delicacy. It concerns the fault of an individual and cannot in any fashion be thrown upon the great nation to which we in so large part owe our victory."

This evoked much applause. After some desultory discussion the debate shifted to questions arising from the sale of French army stocks.

FRENCH MADE INVENTORY.

Washington, April 1.—A detailed inventory was made by French military officials, with the assistance of American army officers, of surplus army stocks sold by the American expeditionary force to France after the armistice, according to his information, Secretary Weeks said today, in commenting on last night's debate in the French senate. He added that he had no information to show that American officials had tampered with the stock after they had sold it or had in any way been guilty of misrepresentation in making the sale.

It was recalled here today that former Secretary Baker stated emphatically some time ago that the French authorities made a detailed inventory of their purchase and that French guards were placed over the stocks as soon as the transaction was completed.

Customs Collector Race.

Savannah, Ga., April 1.—(Special.)—Still another entry in the race for the place as collector of customs at the port of Savannah has been announced, that of Joseph F. Doyle, fifteen years ago postmaster here. He is a native Savannahan, and a republican of long activity.

SHE TOOK HER FRIEND'S ADVICE

Now is in the Best of Health Because she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Detroit, Mich.—"I was not feeling well for several years and never was able to eat any breakfast and always complained of a headache or tired feeling which at times required me to stop my work and rest. I have never had a physician and never took any medicine for it until yours was recommended to me by a neighbor whom I used to visit frequently. I took four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now I am in the best of health and enjoy doing my work every moment of the day."—Mrs. L. M. DARRAS, 46 Howard St., Detroit, Mich.

It is not always in business that a woman is forced to give up her work on account of ill health. It is quite as often the woman who does her own work at home. When backaches and headaches drive out all ambition, when that bearing-down sensation attacks you, when you are nervous and blue, the one great help for such ailments is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A hand-made filet and cutwork cover over pink satin overlaid the luncheon table. An epergne of silver and glass, an antique heirloom, filled with roses and purple tulips, iris and spirea, adorned the center of the table. At either end were crystal baskets of spirea. Four tall silver candlesticks with rose-colored tapers were placed at intervals. Hand-painted cards marked the guests' places.

Opportunities for Y. W. C. A. Training Offered Southern Girls

Miss Edith Tewksbury, director of the extension training division of the training school of the National Young Women's Christian association, 600 Lexington avenue, New York city, in leaving Atlanta Tuesday on her tour of the South Atlantic states, where she is interviewing young women who are interested in making a profession of the work of the Y. W. C. A., gave the following requirements that must be met by an applicant desiring to become a "Y" secretary:

"(1) She must be a college graduate or a graduate of a standard normal school, with several years' of successful teaching experience to her credit. Occasionally a person who is not a graduate, is accepted. The first step in taking up this work as a profession is to take preliminary training in the Y. W. C. A. summer session, which is offered every year at national headquarters in New York.

National Training School.

"This preliminary training is followed by two or three years of practical experience as an officer in a local association; then, if the person as developed executive ability, she is urged to come to the National Training school in order to take further training and prepare herself for a position of responsibility. Preliminary training is a six weeks' course, beginning each year about the first of July. The cost of the course is $30. The student lives in the National Training school or at some place provided by the National Training school, and the approximate cost is at the rate of $16 per week for room and board. The National Training school is on the graduate basis, and the work undertaken by the student is commensurate in qualifications with the work undertaken by any studetn in any large university who is working for her master's degree.

"The National Training school offers a nine months' course in graduate work. The cost of this winter's course is $550, which includes board, tuition and room. Persons interested in taking this training should write to the secretarial department of the national board, 600 Lexington avenue, New York city.

"The Y. W. C. A. offers positions in the following departmetns: Executives in city, town and county associations; i. e., the executive is a secretary who has full charge of developing Y. W. C. A. work in the city, town and county communities. (2) Student secretary, the person who goes into a college in charge of the Y. W. C. A. work which is carried on by the students, with the student secretary as advisor. (3) Girls' work leaders: Those leaders are activities' secretaries, having to do with the clubs which are formed among grade school, high school and young business girls. (4) Industrial secretaries—who are also activities' secretaries, carrying on club work with the industrial girls and the business and professional women. (5) Physical educational directors or health secretaries—These secretaries must be graduates of accredited physical educational schools before taking up the work in the association. (6) Religious education directors must be graduates of accredited schools of religious education. They have to do with the Bible class study which is carried on in every local association. (7) Executives for foreign-born communities—These executives are persons who have some knowledge of at least one foreign language. (8) Cafeteria directors must be graduates of technological schools and may get practical experience either through some commercial cafeteria or by coming to New York to work in one of the two national board cafeterias. Some such experience is required before a young women enters the summer training class for cafeteria workers: Students attending the National Training school sometimes take their course at a theological school in New York, and some at Columbia university.

World-Wide Field.

"The Y. W. C. A. does work the world over. Most of these go to China. The quota of the foreign fields being this year, for instance, 82. Most of these go to China, to Japan, to India, to Szecho-Slovakia, to Russia, France and to South America. The foreign secretaries are sent under a five-year contract, and no one for foreign or overseas work is accepted who has not first served several years in a local association in this country."

Miss Tewksbury, in discussing the young women of the south, asserts that the national and international field of the association offers her characteristic opportunities, as the southern woman brings to her business or profession the gracious home element of hospitality that is an asset to any business or professional woman.

Y. W. C. A. Reserves.

The busiest grade school girls in Atlanta these days are the Y. W. C. A. girl reserves, who are working to raise a fund in order that they may send reserve delegates to the Y. W. C. A. south Atlantic field conference that is to be held early this summer at Pine Harbor inn, near Savannah, Ga. The Atlanta "Y" has not previously sent reserve delegates to summer conferences, but this year the girl reserves, over 300 in number, are determined that the local association shall be creditably represented.

The grade school girls are selling candy to raise their delegates' fund, which will be about $45 a girl.

Mrs. Austin Kimball, a reserve group leader, is in charge of the sale. Leading in sales for Peeples Street school are Mildred Cotter and Inez Murphy. Emily Bacon, a Girls' High student, holds the record for the highest individual sales. June Beauvais is a grade school girl who is finding ready buyers. The Forrest Avenue school reserves have sold $20 worth of candy for the fund.

The girl reserves of the city high schools will, on April 15, give the "1921 whirlwind" to make their conference money. "Whirlwind" tickets are 35 cents each, and are on sale by the girls.

Mrs. Paul Potter gave a delightful children's party yesterday for her young son, Paul, Jr.

To Ohio Visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Davis, of Youngstown, Ohio, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Bernhardt at an informal dinner given at the Piedmont last evening.

Mr. Davis is the senior member of the firm of Davis & Davis, of the Ohio city, and an active member of the Builders' exchange of that city. In recognition of the fine services rendered to the building industry, Mr. Davis at a recent convention of builders held in Savannah, was appointed a member of the board of control of the National Association of Builders' Exchanges of America.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis have been on an extended Southern trip to all points of interest, and surprised their many friends here in Atlanta by dropping in on them unannounced Thursday. They will remain in the city for several days and will be entertained by various members of the Atlanta Builders' exchange, after which they will return immediately to Youngstown.

Birthday Party.

Among the bright social events of Easter week was a beautiful party given by Mrs. James L. Finch, Wednesday, March 30, at her home, 616 Washington street, honoring her little daughter, Louise, on her eleventh birthday.

The home was artistically decorated in Easter lillies, shrubs and wild flowers. The color scheme of pink and white was beautifully carried out.

Twenty-five little guests were present, participating with marked pleasure in the gay activities of the afternoon. One of the most interesting games played was the Peter Rabbit game. Each child being blindfolded, tried to pin a leaf nearest the rabbit's mouth. Little Miss Rolader was the lucky one, and was presented with a beautiful book of "Stories by Uncle Remus."

Mrs. H. A. Manning played a march on the piano, while the children assembled around the dining table, which held as its centerpiece a lovely birthday cake with eleven lighted candles. The refreshments consisted of pink and white brick cream and individual pink and white cakes. Each child was presented with a pink basket filled with Easter eggs.

The young hostess was a pretty figure in a beautiful frock of old rose silk. The skirt, being accordion plaited and the guimps was daintily hand embroidered, and caught with two-tone blue and old rose ribbon. Her soft, long curls were tied with similar ribbon.

Mrs. H. A. Manning and Miss Wynette Manning assisted Mrs. Finch in entertaining.

Y. W. C. A. Girls To Have Rummage Sale.

In order to reimburse a group of "Y" girls who have advanced a small fund for social service work, the girls of the Y. W. C. A. will give a rummage sale next Saturday. Housekeepers in their spring cleaning are urged to donate clothing, dishes, ornaments, children's toys—in fact anything that can be sold in a rummage sale. Send donations to the Y. W. C. A., fourth floor Peachtree arcade. Large collections will be called for at stores or residences.

Club de Vingt.

The seniors of the Club de Vingt will give the second of the series of dances at the Georgian Terrace this afternoon at 4 o'clock. On account of other dances which will take place later in the evening, Mr. Murray's dance will begin promptly at 4 o'clock. The Garba-Davis orchestra will furnish the music. The attendance will be strictly limited to those holding courtesy cards. The parents of the members of the Club de Vingt, including Mrs. W. D. Coleman, Mrs. Lee Ashcraft and Mrs. J. R. Little will chaperon.

Opera Recital Pleases Audience.

The opera recital "Rigoletto," which was given last evening at Cable hall under the auspices of the Joseph Habersham chapter of the D. A. R., proved one of the most delightful of the series.

Especially pleasing was the singing of Mrs. Grace Brown Townsend, whose beautiful coloratura soprano voice was heard to advantage in the aria "Caro Nome." Mrs. Townsend, it will be remembered, also appeared in the first opera of the series, "Andrea Chenier."

Nearly every number given Friday evening was heartily encored and the evening was a big success.

The last opera recital will be held next Tuesday when "La Tosca" will be offered. The chief singers will be Frank Cundell, Willford Waters and Mrs. Benjamin Elsas.

EUROPE MUST PAY DEBT TO AMERICA

Administration Considers Foreign Loans as Assets and Cancellation as Idle Dream.

Washington, April 1.—The administration permits it to be officially known that this government regards its foreign loans as first class assets.

Which means that if there are any nations still figuring upon the possibility of the United States cancelling these indebtednesses, the hope is an idle one. Foreign loans are now approximately $9,500,000,000 and in addition there is a total of $1,500,000,000 interest yet unpaid.

Friday the cabinet discussed in general terms the methods for handling further interest to fall due soon. No definite disposition was made of the question, it was said, although the suggestions of a number of prominent bankers, some of whom favor refunding of the whole European debt, were touched upon. It is the wish of President Harding to take the whole question of the international loans out of the realm of speculation and have a definite understanding as to when and how they are to be paid. This, he feels, would remove a cause for ill-feeling and would exert a stabilizing influence on exchange and trade.

Congress also is anxious to know definitely just how much income may be expected from the loans. This information is considered essential in preparation of any fiscal program to cover a series of years. If interest is to be forthcoming that much less money would need to be derived from taxation.

In its consideration of the railroad problem the cabinet had before it detailed information given the president yesterday by Chairman Clark of the interstate commerce commission, and Chairman Barton of the railroad labor board, in addition to a mass of other data which has been collected by administration officials.

Although the discussion developed that the administration was working toward a solution, it was made known afterward that further facts would be collected before a rehabilitation policy was adopted.

The point that wage and other contracts entered into when the railroads were under government control still are in force was raised in a telegram received today by President Harding from the railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor, which proposed that employers and employees be called into a general conference on the subject of railway reorganization. The president had not replied to the telegram tonight, although there were indications that he has no plan for a general conference now in demand. No officials close to the executive expect him rather to work out his policy through individual consultation with the managers, stockholders and employees.

In the cabinet's discussion of the question of continuing wartime agreements it was brought out that the issues involved far more than the mere controversy between employer and employee. Argument was put forward that if the contracts in question were to be regarded as still in force, that would remove the right of negotiation from the roads and men of many wage disagreements. It also was pointed out, however, that this question was not directly before the president, but rather was a nut to be cracked by the railway labor board.

In its general review of business conditions the cabinet took particular notice of agricultural productivity, on which a report was made by Secretary Wallace of the agricultural department. The substance of his opinion has perviously been made public in his appeals for relief to agricultural interests.

STRIKE OF MINERS IN BRITAIN QUIET

Enginemen Stick to Posts to Prevent Flooding of Mines, and Settlement Is Likely Soon.

London, April 1.—The country-wide cessation of coal production throughout Great Britain's coal area today because of the miners' strike thus far has not been productive of trouble in any of the mines where the enginemen are reported to have stuck to their posts to prevent the pits being flooded.

This raised the belief in some quarters that the fight will not be long, especially as the miners lack the funds necessary to continue a long struggle.

Meantime certain of the big iron and steel industries, in order to preserve the works from the consequences of a stoppage of coal supplies, closed down today. Others on the northwest coast of England are expected to shut down early next week.

So far as negotiations between the mine owners and the men are concerned, some members of the coal owners' association, with authority to negotiate, have remained in London, while France Hodges, secretary of the miners' union, is here, authorized to treat for the men if a favorable opportunity occurs. Government circles are reported to be slightly more optimistic regarding the situation, in view of the action of the owners and others in safeguarding the pits from flooding.

$7,500 Per Month Alimony Allowed To Mrs. Stillman

Temporary Alimony, Counsel Fees and Expenses Fixed by Justice.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., April 1.—Temporary alimony of $7,500 a month, counsel fees of $35,000 and $12,500 for expenses were fixed today for Mrs. Anne U. Stillman by Supreme Justice Joseph Morschauser in the suit for divorce instituted against her by James A. Stillman, president of the National City bank of New York.

Mrs. Stillman had asked alimony of $10,000 a month and $75,000 counsel fees. Justice Morschauser made public his decision after he had transmitted it to the court clerk at White Plains, along with affidavits and pleadings presented in the case.

In his decision Justice Morschauser ruled out of the divorce suit as confidential and privileged the alleged "confession" letter written to Mr. Stillman by his wife. He also ruled out letters alleged to have been written to Mrs. Stillman by Fred Beauvais, an Indian guide, who was named in the banker's complaint as co-respondent and accused of being the father of Mrs. Stillman's infant son, Guy.

Pleaded Recriminations.

The decision set forth that Mrs. Stillman had pleaded recriminations in her answer to the banker's complaint and that both husband and wife made charges "founded upon an allegation of adultery."

"A husband or wife is not competent to testify against the other," on such allegations, the decision said. The justice decided that the affidavits to which the letters were appended contained matters that Mr. Stillman could not testify to, and it was upon this ground that the communications were barred.

Justice Morschauser pointed out that his inhibition against admitting the alleged messages from Beauvais to Mrs. Stillman applied to the motion under consideration and that they might be offered again in connection with later motions.

Referring to the alleged letter written to Mr. Stillman by his wife to the admission of which her attorneys objected, and which it was charged by counsel for the banker she wrote "in a moment of hysteria, implicating herself," the decision said:

"Husband and Wife."

"Communications and transactions between husband and wife were early recognized as privileged and neither could be compelled to disclose what took place between them, and neither was a competent witness to testify as to such transactions or communications of a confidential nature or induced by marital relation.

"From experience it was found that far less evil would result from the exclusion of such testimony than from its admission. It may in individual cases work hardship, but the destruction of confidence between a husband and wife would cause much misery and affect the marriage relation. This rule is founded upon sound public policy."

Referring to Mrs. Stillman's charge that her financier husband is the father of a 30-months-old son born to "Mrs. Florence H. Leeds," former musical revue girl, the decision said:

Does Not Seek Divorce.

"The defendant has amended her answer and charges acts and conduct upon the plaintiff of similar character as charged by him against her, and such acts are supported by affidavits of different persons.

"She does not seek a divorce, but pleads recrimination against the defendant as a defense. If the acts and conduct as charged against each other are sustained, neither will be entitled to a decree.

"If these charges are established the plaintiff and defendant will find themselves in the same position as before the commencement of the action, except that they will have had their day in court, or perhaps several days, as to matters affecting them, and this means time, labor and expenditure of money."

"Debatable Question."

The decision said it was "a debatable question" whether the letters alleged to have been written to Mrs. Stillman by the Indian guide, one of her husband's servants, should be received upon the plaintiff's affidavits, unaccompanied by other affidavits."

Guy Stillman, the infant, whose legitimacy was attacked by Mr. Stillman, and who was named co-defendant with his mother, "will bear a stain that cannot be erased and for which he is not responsible if the husband is successful in his suit," said the decision.

"The plaintiff seeks to do that which he believes is his duty to himself and his children," it continued. "The plantiff having challenged the paternity of the child, the defendant comes to its protection and to the defense of its legitimacy. That is her duty, and she is right in her claim. She vigorously champions the child's cause and this is expected from any mother.

Children to Choose.

"The interests of the defendant and of the infant in this case are to a great extent the same."

The three Stillman children, other than the infant whose paternity is attacked, "are of sufficient age to determine with whom they desire to reside during the pendency of the action," Justice Morschauser said.

"Their preference should control in the circumstances now presented. While the children live with the mother, or in her charge, she must provide for their schooling and other necessary expenses. I believe to meet these expenses the alimony should be allowed in the sum of $7,500 a month."

NOT TO FILE PAPERS IN CASE.

White Plains, N. Y., April 1.—Papers in the Stillman divorce case will not be filed today at Carmel, Putnam county, according to Charles Decker, clerk in the special terms of the supreme court. He said he had received telephone instructions from Justice Morschauser to hold all the papers in White Plains until next Monday, when the justice will arrive here.

It had been expected that newspaper men would have access to the papers at Carmel. No information could be obtained as to whether Justice Morschauser would permit inspection of the various affidavits here Monday.

STILLMAN TO APPEAL.

New York, April 1.—Appeal from the decision of Supreme Court Justice Morschauser granting Mrs. Anne U. Stillman $90,000 a year alimony and counsel fees of $35,000 to defend the divorce action brought by James A. Stillman, will be taken immediately by counsel for the New York banker.

Cornelius J. Sullivan, one of Stillman's attorneys, announced this afternoon the appeal would be brought before the appellate division second department of the supreme court in Brooklyn.

ATLANTA "CLEAN-UP" WEEK OPENS APRIL 11

Date Is Announced at Meeting of the Board of Health.

The week of April 11 was designated by the board of health Friday afternoon as "clean up" week in the city. Housewives, business men, civic organizations and the children of Atlanta will be asked to join in a big campaign to clean up the city "from cellar to garret."

Rubbish and dirt that ordinarily escapes removal but detracts from the sanitation and beauty of the city will be collected and the sanitary department will cart it away to one of the dumps or to the crematory.

Clean up week has been an annual event in Atlanta for a number of years and the results have been remarkable in a cleaner and more beautiful city. Painting up has always been a part of each crusade.

BOND VALIDATION HEARING WILL BE CONTINUED TODAY

After Solicitor-General Boykin had been called from the grand jury room to testify in the hearing of the rule nisi filed by Walter R. Brown, attorney, who asks to intervene in the validation of the city's $8,850,000 bond issue, the hearing was continued Friday afternoon and will be taken up again Saturday morning.

When validation proceedings were held last week, Attorney Brown filed a petition to intervene in protest. It was held that his petition was entered 15 minutes too late, and the lawyer claimed that the solicitor had agreed not to take action until he had notified Brown.

Mr. Boykin testified at the hearing, which was called at noon before Judge George L. Bell, that so far as he knew Brown had notice of the proceedings and that he knew of no binding agreement with Brown regarding the case.

WRIGHT IS INDICTED FOR SIEGEL'S MURDER

John Wright, a negro who was arrested by deputy sheriffs working under the direction of Solicitor John A. Boykin, was indicted Friday by the Fulton county grand jury charged with the murder of Sam Siegel, a merchant, on the evening of March 5, 1921.

Siegel was shot and instantly killed by a negro, as the former was turning out a light in front of his store preparatory to closing for the night. The dead man's wife witnessed the shooting as did a white man who was about twenty feet from the negro when he shot, according to statements made to the jury. The negro was identified by the white man and his arrest followed.

POULTRY RAISERS OF FULTON WILL ORGANIZE TODAY

Organization of the poultry raisers of Fulton county will be effected Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the assembly room at the courthouse. Miss Floy Shannon, county demonstrating agent, will preside, and W. S. Rue, an expert on poultry, will address the club.

EXPECT HEAVY DEMAND FOR SINGLE TICKETS

All Indications Point to Record Year From Attendance Viewpoint.

A heavy demand for tickets to single performances of grand opera this year from out-of-town people is reported by C. B. Bidwell, treasurer of the Atlanta Music Festival association. Indications, he said, point to a record year for Metropolitan grand opera from the standpoint of attendance from the entire south.

The reservation of two entire sections of the Auditorium for non-resident patrons was a step toward the provision for this numerous class of music-lovers which has met wide favor.

Despite the fact that the season ticket sale was eminently satisfactory, say officials of the association, there still remain a large number of choice seats for single performances. The speed with which they are being bought, and the fact that the out-of-town demand is this year particularly heavy makes it advisable for those who wish tickets to secure them as soon as is possible after the opening of the single seat sale Monday, April 4, to continue through the opera season.

THREE NEGROES HELD FOR $2,574 JEWELRY THEFT

Arrested in connection with the theft of jewelry valued at $2,574.50 from the E. A. Morgan Jewelry company, 10 East Hunter street, Henry Clay and Walter Kennedy, two negroes, have confessed, it is stated, and the police Friday night apprehended Robert Farrell, another negro, implicated by the confession.

Clay alleged that Kennedy, who works in a Decatur street barber shop, influenced him into stealing the jewelry last Monday, and that he gave it to him following the robbery. Kennedy, in his confession, told the police that one of the rings, valued at $1,100, was stolen from him by Farrell when he left all the jewelry in the latter's shop.

Farrell denies any connection with the robbery. All of the missing jewelry has been recovered with the exception of the missing ring. Detectives Cody and Mosely made all the arrests.

Long Clouts Feature of Tech Over Clemson Nine; Home Runs Of Jackets Aid in Scoring

BY WALLACE GEORGE.

With Dan O'Leary hurling unbeatable ball and the heavy artillery of the batting order coming through with the same sort of terrific attack that has characterized their every game this season, the Georgia Yellow Jackets swamped Clemson Friday in the first game of the series by the score of 7 to 0.

The second of the Tech-Clemson scraps will be played this afternoon on Grant field at 3 o'clock. There is strong probability that Coach Clay will send Sunshine Thompson to the mound and Ed Liddell will work with him behind the bat. Owens, captain of the Tigers, will most likely take the mound for the visitors.

O'Leary allowed but three well scattered hits during the course of the contest and set nine down by the strikeout route. Furthermore, the only man that ever got as far as second was Crossland on a double down the left field foul line, and he didn't venture a hit farther.

Extra base hits featured the attack of the Jackets and of the ten safeties registered off the delivery of Boozer six were for extra bases. Two home runs, two triples and two doubles went to make a pretty neat collection for an afternoon's work and the best part of it was that they came in bunches.

"Bloody Seventh."

Eddie Morgan led off the seventh by catching one on the nose and shoving it right down the right field foul line. He circled the paths when Owens stumbled and let it get away. Esau Settle followed suit once with a long triple to left and hardly had the smoke of things cleared away when Red Barron came along and corked a beautiful fourbagger to left center.

The sixth was a rather lucky round for the Jackets and they managed to get three tallies across with but two hits. After fouling the ball seven consecutive times, Bevo Webb caught one on the end of his war club for a single to center. Baby Roane took three bases on his drive a little later when Sally played it slowly and Bevo cantered home. Buck Flowers walked and at once swiped second. Woodward erred on Barnett's grounder and in the melee both Baby and Buck scored. O'Leary ended the Tigers' misery by hitting into a fielder's choice.

AMERICAN LEAGUE CATCHERS.	Offensive.	Defensive.	Total.

Catching is the most vital post on a ball club. In the mere performance of duty, pitching of course ranks highest, but there always has been a question in my mind as to whether the catcher should not be credited with some of the points that are figured to the pitcher's credit. In fact, we must place the figures to the credit of the pitcher, in order to follow dope systematically, yet in so doing we are compelled to figure the influence of the catcher upon the pitchers either for good or evil.

The study of dope on pitchers and catchers is strangely mingled, for a good catcher adds at least 15 per cent to the efficiency of a pitcher, and a bad catcher detracts so much from the value of the pitcher that he may ruin an entire staff.

It is for this reason that it becomes necessary to make the closest kind of a study of the performances of catchers in the past, not only their own official figures, but their work with pitchers and their effect upon the pitching staffs as a whole. In no other way may we arrive at a fair and correct estimate of the worth of catchers.

I have been compelled to study the catcher of each league separately, and the system is extremely complicated. I am compelled to figure three catchers for each team. It will not do to average the figures of the three or four men who will catch the 154 games, but we must take the "first catcher," calculate from his past performances about how many games he will catch, how many the second catcher will work, and how many the third. We thus have to calculate that Schalk will catch at least 130 games unless he meets injury, O'Neill 140—and so on.

The average strength of the catching staff is no criterion; the best man will do practically all the heavy work excepting in cases where one catcher works better with the left-handers than with the right, or vice versa.

On this theory I have figured the American league catchers, and it will not surprise many fans to discover that Ray Schalk still is the leader, and perhaps will be as long as he continues to play ball. Schalk is, beyond doubt, the greatest catcher of the era, not strong in attack, but a remarkable pinch hitter and a tremendous aid to pitchers; in fact, to the entire team. He will not have much to lead this season.

Indians Comfortable Second.

The remarkable ability of Stevey O'Neill lands the Indians in a comfortable second place position among the catchers, and he has able assistants in case of injuries. Nunamaker is a remarkably smart catcher, and Chet Thomas is extraordinarily strong for a third string man. In this respect Cleveland is better fortified than the White Sox, although Lees has improved steadily.

The Athletics loom up strong again. In fact, if there is one catcher in sight who threatens the supremacy of Schalk and O'Neill it is this hustling, aggressive Perkins, who, when he learns to direct a team as Schalk does, will crowd them all for top honors. Besides his hustle and his speed, the boy is advancing steadily in knowledge of the game, and with a better team to work with, and with Mack's careful coaching to aid him, he deserves the hight rating the dope figures award him.

Just behind the Athletics we find that persistent St. Louis team, the strength of which is chiefly due to Severeid, although Josh Billings contributes considerably to the total. Severeid is one of the real stars, and Billings, who started a bit too young, and when he lacked weight, has aged and advanced so that with some other club he would be the first catcher. The combination of two real star catchers on one team is quite rare, and the Browns are set for emergencies.

Washington Has Steady Combination.

Washington has an unusually steady combination behind the bat with Picinich and Gharrity reinforced by Torres. They have some tough pitching to handle, and the scrutiny of their records in past seasons shows they can do it. I think for handling all styles of pitching the pair—Gharrity and Picinich—are better fitted than the majority.

There is no real surprise in the dope on the American catchers unless it lies in the fact that the figures reveal that the Boston Red Sox gained rather than lost in trading Wally Schang to the Yanks, for the Red Sox outfigure the claiming champions by a comfortable margin.

There is a lot of question about the manner in which Walters and Ruel have been used by managers during their major league careers. Both are hustling aggressive fellows who want to work and who need work. Being benched and kept idle for long periods injured their work in New York, and the chances are they will get all the work they want under Duffy.

Figures Show Yankee Weakness.

The dope figures are pitiless in picking out defects in any team, and they show that the glaring flaw in the New York Yankee lineup thus far is in catchers. Schang, to be frank, never has been as good a catcher in his major league career as he was the first season he joined the Athletics. Perhaps his work has been hurt because he has been played in other positions. He can hit, and he can run, and he can throw—hard but not well. He is not a finished backstop, and he has not worked well with pitchers. Yet Schang must bear the brunt of the campaign and catch one of the toughest assortment of pitchers in the country. In fact, I know of no other pitching corps with as many different styles of pitching as the Yanks will present.

Besides that, the flaw in Huggins' team seems to be lack of capable left-handed pitchers. He must try to develop a left-hander, and developing a left-hander is hard on catchers. The others of the Yank catching corps are not up to standard of the league, although Hoffman looks to be coming along.

As usual we find Detroit down in the ruck. One glaring weakness of the Tigers ever since the day of Jimmy Archer has been in catching. Ainsmith is a smart catcher, a good worker and all that, but not strong in attack. Manion is very promising—and that is all.

Doped as a whole, the American league catchers rate high, higher, in fact, than is usual. We are commencing to develop catchers in quantity now, and many promising youngsters are coming along. It takes usually five years for a catcher to develop into a real star who is valuable to his club outside his own work—and by that time they usually have dead arms. The present generation is good, and the next promises just as good things.

In the next article we will compare the National league catchers after the same system.

ANNUAL TECH FIELD EVENT IS ON TODAY

BY WALLACE GEORGE.

The annual Field day will be held at Georgia Tech this morning and incidentally Saturday will be a holiday for all the Tech students. As a usual thing the occasion comes in the afternoon, but the baseball games every evening in the weekends this spring necessitated its being held in the morning when the Grant field flats were not being used.

The regular order of events will be followed today as in a track meet and the first heat of the hundredyard dash will be started promptly at 9 o'clock. Field and track events will be run off simultaneously and all should be complete in two or three hours. There is no admission charge and the Tech officials are anxious to have a good crowd out to witness the trials.

Coach W. A. Alexander will handle the field events with whatever assistance he may need from the student managers. Assistant Coach Griffin will act as head starter in the track work; Professor Stamey will be judge of the finishes, and Professor Dun will act as official timer of all the races.

The real idea of the Field day is to select the 1921 track team and while the winners today do not absolutely go to make up the final pick, still a man's showing this morning will have much bearing on his making the varsity squad. Some 25 men will probably be retained to make up the squad, though hardly more than a dozen can ever be carried on any trip or entered in any one meet.

The first meet of the year comes next Saturday afternoon down at Auburn and it is to this end that the Tech tracksters have been working overtime to get into good condition. Following this Tiger contest there is a dual meet here in Atlanta with the Sewanee Purple that will offer the strongest trial the Jacket track men are liable to run up against outside of the annual S. I. A. A. meet.

Ed Manning Joins Crackers To Train at Bay Next Year

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY

Dropping off at Bay St. Louis, Miss., Thursday en route to Atlanta from the Texas invasion by Charlie Frank's pennant hopes, the writer was surprised to find Ed Manning entertaining the rookies with his stories of the Southern league, anecdotes that dated back some years when Ed was one of the best known outfielders in the circuit. We were even more surprised to discover that Ed has affixed his signature to a Cracker contract, and that he is all primed to give the candidates a great scrap for a berth.

Ed has been working out with the Little Rock Travelers and looks to be in fine condition. His hitting in Thursday's workout at the Bay was the best of the week, we were told by J. Smith, who was left in charge of the squad, and the gang is convinced that Manning will prove of considerable value the outer garden.

This outfield has been the one disturbing feature of the camp-followers' dreams, and with Manning out there to look after one of the gardens, the prospect looks a whole heap better. Ed has always been a good hitter, and while we don't believe he has ever batted above the .300 mark, we are very much of the belief that his figures will average around .280, which is good enough. His first year in the league Ed poled out the apple for a percentage of .297, and there were few seasons that he fell very much below this mark.

Sammy Mayer, Ed Manning, Joe Munson, Joe Guyon, J. Smith and Jack Driscoll are the outfielding candidates at present eating at Charlie Frank's expense, and the list is a good one. Sammy's arm, injured recently in Gulfport, is coming around nicely; Munson's fielding is improving; Joe Guyon looks better than he ever did; J. Smith is hitting the ball nicely, and Jack Driscoll is out with a bad foot.

If the advancing years haven't closed up Manning's batting eye, and if he is the fielder he was a couple of years back, there should be little doubt about his marking good at a Cracker. We rather believe that Frank's outfield at the start will consists of Fred Smith, in right; Sammy Mayer, in center; Manning, Munson or Guyon, in life.

Just now Joe Munson is leading the pack with the willow, but the fielding of this former Lehigh gridiron star hasn't been at all brilliant. Under the systematic tutelage of Messrs. Frank, Kauffman and Mayer, however, Joe seems to be overcoming this weakness and will probably be carried along. It is believed by persons close to Charlie Frank that Fred Smith will be shifted to one of the outfield places, and we believe the transfer will prove profitable.

Fred is hitting much better than he did last year, and his overage for the exhibition toud, through Wednesday's game, is well above .350. Of course, no one believes that Smith will continue such a phenomenal work throughout the season, but one thing is certain, his mark will rank mightly close to the .300 circle during the approaching campaign. Fred is a good man to have along with any baseball club, and even if he doesn't land in the outfield, he will prove of inestimable value as a utility player.

The infield, with Kauffman, Ritter, Graff and Bobby Stow will be hard to beat in the Southern league, and we doubt seriously if Atlanta has been quite so well represented on the pegs in a number of seasons. This isn't pre-season enthusiasm, either, the infield is great. In Brenner, Kauffman has a very capable understudy, but it is more than likely that Herbert will be given one more year before he is recalled for permanent duty with the Crackers.

Arthur Ritter has made a splendid impression on the Atlanta officials, and it is a foregone conclusion that the Canadian league star will receive his mail here for this summer at least. When Connie Mack saw Ritter play in Lake Charles recently the "old master" declared that the youngster showed more promise than any recruit he had seen this spring. Connie made one exception, Ollie Fuhrman, backstopping property of the Athletics, but loaned to Charlie Frank for further seasoning, Mack asserted to have promise of a big league career that will rival Cy Perkins' success.

Scribes in every Texas city visited by the Crackers predicted that Bobby Stow would prove a sensation in the Southern league and having watched Bobby in several encounters, we are led to believe that the Lone Star newspaper men are eminently correct.

OGLETHORPE DEFEATED BY PLAINSMEN

Auburn, Ala., April 1.—(Special.) The Oglethorpe Petrels were unable to stop the smashing attack of Mike Donahue's Auburn clan here this afternoon and were defeated, 11 to 3, in a game featured by the hard and consistent rapping of the Plainsmen.

Morris started for the Petrels, but after two innings of seeing his offerings slapped to all corners of the lot, he gave way to Adams, but the change made little difference—the Tigers had their batting peepers peeled, and hit succeeded hit in a never-ending procession.

The Petrels loomed as dangerous opposition in the first inning and scored two runs, but after that Olinger held them well in hand and few opportunities were granted the Atlantans for further scoring. The hitting of Lassiter was a feature for the Tigers, this lad coming through with a home run in the third inning with two of the hassocks occupied. Later in the game Lassiter drove out another fearful clout, but Outfielder David pulled it down by one of the most sensational catches ever recorded in the 'Loveliest Village."

You take the light pink crepe as the Colossus of Ignorance. You grab first place in the dance around the May Pole of Stupidity. Compared with Weasel Jones, your man had about as much chance as a fly between two sheets of Tanglefoot. Weasel was so tough that he only walked on his heels. He would go eleven miles out of his way to step on a mower. At the age of three months he was out on parole. When other kids were inhaling their A. B. Abs. Weasel already had a long career of crime behind him and a carload ordered for the next morning.

Yours, from Mendota, Ill. RUDOLPH SCHOTT.

WEASEL JONES may have been a tough client in other towns, but the records show that he walked into Roughtown with his hands raised over his buttonsized head. The fame of the delicate municipality of Roughtown had soaked into and permeated all parts and segments of the world. The Weasel surrendered on suspicion to the first fugitive he encountered on his way to Gink Fowler's home nest.

IT WAS NOT this fugitive's day for small fry. He passed to Weasel up to an apprentice Roughtown thug who couldn't find a baby carriage to fit the Weasel. It looked as if he would have to apply to the Audubon society for some food. He walked pedestrianly up Roughtown's most luxurious alley, looking in vain for a kind face. As everybody knew at that laggard date, kind faces had been abolished by a filibuster in the Roughtown Congress of Hate.

THE WEASEL was in like a democratic president. He tried to slide into an auction sale where they were raffling off family thumbpints. Now, thumb engravings were great pieces of tribal triumph in Roughtown.

IT WAS THE BOAST of Gink Fowler's clan that they had the original of every family thumb etching that had been taken in the last thousand years. You could find a Fowler thumb stamp on everything in town. Police blotter, jewelry, doorknobs, safes, vaults, wedding presents, anything of value.

IT WAS THE FOWLER boast that they were never defeated in a thumbmarking contest. Others might put the first thumb seal on jewelry or money. But when the police came to judge the carnival the Fowlers were always declared the winners.

GINK REFUSED TO MEET him. When the gong rang, the Weasel dashed out of his corner and careened joyously around the ring in approved Denishawn technique. He threw a nosegay of garlands over Gink's head. Gink stood puzzled by the ferocity of the attack. He toured down to the canvas, while anxious thousands slept in their seats. Although Weasel didn't know it, resin was Gink's dish. He was excursioned to the floor by a vicious crash of lilies over his skull and then came back greatly refreshed by a meal of resin en casserole.

HE SLAMMED WEASEL on the chin and Weasel sailed out of the ring and over a transom. That was sharpshooting. On the other side of the door was a judge holding a knitting needle. The Weasel went right through the eye of the needle. Gink was awarded the marksmanship medal of Roughtown.

GILMERITES BEAT G. M. A. IN 1ST GAME

BY LAUREN CLARK.

Boys' High opened her 1921 baseball season with a 7 to 5 victory over the G. M. A. cadets yesterday at Ponce de Leon park. The two teams battled for the prep league supremacy last year with the Purple and White team winning out.

G. M. A. looked a sure winner when the eighth inning rolled around. The cadets had overcome an early lead and were leading by one run. David's crew pulled a decisive rally. Robertson, the first man up, singled; Clark beat out a hit to third; Roane was safe on a fielder's choice that got Clark at second Clyde Wallace was hit by a pitched ball. With the bases loaded R. Ellis took three healthy ones, but T. Ellis hit to short and Tolliver went up in the air holding the ball while Robertson scored and all hands were safe. Melvin Smith hit the first ball pitched to the right field bank, scoring three men. The cadets tried hard to push across enough runs in the ninth but fell two short.

Smithies Win.

Tech High opened up her 1921 season with a 11 to 1 victory over Marist. The Smithies hammered Bradley very freely at times, while Miles of Tech High held the Marist crew well in hand until his teammates had piled up a substantial lead, then he eased up a little, and the Ivy street lads pushed across a counter.

The work of the Tech High infield was exceptionally good, living fully up to its reputation as one of the best infields in the prep league.

Bluebirds Winners.

The University school had very little trouble in defeating Commercial by a 7 to 2 score. Red Laird did the twirling for the winners and was never in much danger. He also had a very nice day with the willow, getting two hits out of four times up. B. Boswell led his team with the stick, being credited with three out of four. Lane of Commercial succeeded in getting the same number of hits out of as many tries.

GEORGIA TO BATTLE YALE NINE TODAY

By JOHN MAHONEY.

Athens, Ga., April 1.—The Georgia Bulldogs, undefeated on the baseball diamond so far, returned to classic city shores Friday night and are to battle Yale university for the second time this season Saturday. The men of Eli have played all of their scheduled games in Macon, and the contest with Georgia Saturday will be the first that they have left their training grounds to play a Southern team this year.

The prowess of the Yale team has been proven by the defeats administered to Auburn and Alabama, and the close game that took place between Coach White's Bulldogs and the Yale nine on last Monday. Georgia won this game by a ninth inning rally.

Georgia will take the field with the scalps of four teams tucked away. The bulldogs have defeated Cincinnati university, Clemson, Yale and Camp Benning, and have played a draw game with the strong Oglethorpe Petrels. Coach White's selection for pitching honors will probably be George Clarke, who accomplished the first win over the Yale team. Clarke is hurling his second year for Georgia and is a much better pitcher than he was last season, having shown the ability to combine the wares of a speed monarch with a baffling array of benders.

Sanford field is in readiness for the game, and excitement is running high as the day of conflict approaches. A spirit meeting was held Friday night in the historic old chapel, and the famous "Georgia spirit" will be in evidence when the rival teams take the field.

Crackers Outhit Houston Club But Texans Get Breaks Enough To Down Charlie Frank's Team

Houston, Texas, April 1.—(Special.)—The Buffs proved Friday morning they were a good class A ball club when, though outhit, they defeated the Atlanta Crackers by the score of 7 to 3. Just two individuals played the big part in the scoring, Griffiths, former Western league catcher, and Manager George Whiteman. These members of the local heard made clouts with men on bases that resulted in runs.

The fun started in the first game. Faggan was walked when Brewer, the giant Mississippian, lost all sense of control. Bailey sacrificed him to second. Whitey produced a two-base wallop and Baggan ambled home. Whiteman scored a moment later when Chipman lost one of Brewer's low ones and while he hunted for it Whiteman scored from second. The ball rolled to the grandstand and the catcher conducted a still hunt around home plate. Brewer finally discovered the ball but too late to catch the local base runner. Houston produced two more runs in the second frame and Brewer was yanked and Doyle sent to the hill top.

Other Scoring.

He walked Ezell. Wimer struck out. Griffith came through with his swat, a three-bagger, and Ezell scored. Robertson, Buff hurler, followed with a single, and Griffith counted.

Again in the fourth frame did the locals chalk up a trio of counters. Wimer walked; Griffith came through with a two-base wallop and Wimer went to third. He scored on a sacrifice fly by Robertson. Baggan singled and Griffith went to third. Whiteman stung one for a single and Griffith and Baggan scored.

Robertson retired from the hilltop at the end of the fourth inning. Whiteworth, the former South Texas semi-pro, succeeding him. In the fifth the Crackers made three hits, but were unable to count.

Peg From Left.

A great peg by Johnny Baggan from left field caught Furhman at the plate in this frame following a single by Stow. The Atlantans made at least one hit each inning until the eighth. Whiteworth started the frame by walking Ritter and Graff. Munson forced Graff at second. Smith connected for one of two bases. Kaufman followed with a two-bagger. Smith's clout scored Ritter and Kaufman's sent Smith and Munson home. At this stage of the game Whiteman sent a hurried call for Jim Gudger. He retired the next two men in order.

In the eighth inning McConnell, former local junior league backstop, was given a chance to work. He displayed a lot of pep and worker in a likely manner. Gilham, the recently obtained backstop, who came here from the Cardinals, also worked part of the game and looked good.

JERSEY CITY TO BE SITE OF BIG BOUT

Montreal, April.—The heavyweight championship bout between Jack Dempsey and George Carpentier will be staged in Jersey City, according to word received here today by a local promoter from Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager.

The promoter, who was interested in attempting to bring the big bout to Canada, said Kearns gave him the definite information over long distance telephone from New York. He added that Kearns said he was leaving immediately for the west to consult with the champion.

A prize for the best bulb digging machine has been offered by a Dutch bulb culture society.

4 VETERANS ARE PICKED FOR UMPIRES

Memphis, Tenn., April 1.—Four of last season's staff—William Brennan, Dan Pfenninger, Hadley Williams and Cy Pfirman—and four new men, Tex Erwin, George W. Tandy, Edward Janson and W. R. McNamara, will make up the list of Southern association umpires for the 1921 season.

The personnel was made public tonight by John D. Martin, league president.

Erwin formerly was an umpire in the Eastern league, and Tandy in the Piedmont. McNamara is a Birmingham man, and Janson from Rhode Island.

France bought from England all the railway lines the latter laid down in that country.

Funeral Services For Accident Victim Are Held on Friday

Funeral services of Private John Q. Ponder, of Company B, Camp Jessup, who died Thursday at the station hospital at Fort McPherson following an accident on Campbellton road early last Monday, when an automobile in which two civilians were riding struck his motorcycle, breaking the leg of his companion, Private Dowdell Williams, of the same company, were held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence, 17 Leonard street. The body was sent to Berea, Ky., his former home, for interment.

Private Williams, who was riding with Ponder, is confined to a hospital ward in the fort receiving treatment for his injuries. Military officials have been unable to give out any definite details of the accident, as the investigation of the case has not been completed.

SALARIES ARE PAID A., B. & A. STRIKERS

Money Obtained on Friday Through Execution of Note for $125,000.

The employees and former employees of the A., B. & A. railway were paid more than $100,000 back salaries Friday after Colonel B. L. Bugg, receiver of the road, had obtained the money by the execution of a note for $125,000 authorized by Judge S. R. Sibley, of the United States district court.

The money paid the men, who are on strike, as well as other employees of the railway Friday was due on the pay roll of March 1, which could not be met by the receiver because, it was stated, the revenue of the road had been so reduced by the strike that the money could not be secured with which to meet the pay roll.

The payment of the past due wages Friday was the principal development in the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railway situation, other matters of interest being the informal announcement by the receiver that service on the road, despite the strike, is going forward to the satisfaction of the operating officials. This does not mean, it was stated, that the service on the A., B. & A. is normal, because the passenger trains operated are run principally in the day light, but it was declared that the railway is furnishing practically all the train service required, both local freight and passenger.

List of Stockholders.

Giving out a telegram from the legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in Washington, D. C., which purports to present a list of the owners of the A., B. & A. railway, the names of stockholders with 328,294 shares, as taken from the records of the interstate commerce commission, are disclosed.

Val Fitzpatrick, chairman of the committee representing the fourteen railroad brotherhoods, involved in the A., B. & A. strike, in commenting upon the list, declared that it "proved that the road is not owned by widows and orphans, as has been claimed, but is the property of moneyed interests of Wall street."

The list of A., B. & A. stockholders, which was made up by H. E. Wills, who represents the engineers at the national capital, and which is published for the first time in Atlanta, is as follows:

Charles F. Ayer, Boston, Mass., 2,162; Samuel G. Bayne, New York, 4,000; H. C. Benner, Boston, Mass., 2,258; Curtis & Sanger, Boston, Mass., 21,046; Farmers Loan and Trust company, New York, 8,000; Louise A. Gordon, Lincoln, Mass., 3,000; Charles Hayden, New York, 100,000; Hayden Stone & Co., New York, 65,515; Arthur W. Hutchins, New York, 15,500; Kidder Peabody & Co., Boston, Mass., 19,719; A. W. Leasny, Trust and Deposit Co. of Onondaga, Syracuse, N. Y., 4,423; Edwin S. Marston, New York, 2,000; Merrill Lynch & Co., New York, 3,315; Miami corporation, Chicago, Ill., 5,901; M. Taylor Pyne, New York, N. Y., 11,000; Percy R. Pyne, New York, N. Y., 10,000; Henry B. Robson, New York, N. Y., 16,262; Galen L. Stone, Boston, Mass., 20,000; F. D. M. Strachan, Brunswick, Ga., 8,977; Ellen Ayer Wood, Boston, Mass., 3,000. Total, 325,913.

NOTE—2,381 shares held by N. H. Stone, Charles E. Perkins and W. F. McFarland, trustees. Under declaration of trust by Edith F. Perkins et al., 614 Sears building, Boston, Mass., 2,381. Total, 328,294.

Statement by Men.

A statement given out Friday afternoon by the brotherhood committees, charges that the A., B. & A. railway is being operated without the necessary safety precautions to the public; that the lives of postal clerks are being endangered by the practices of inefficient men used as strike-breakers, and that one-eyed engineers are employed, whose vision would be wiped out should a cinder get in their remaining optic.

The statement of the brotherhood men regarding the use of negro engineers on the A., B. & A. railway was last night vigorously denied by Colonel B. L. Bugg, receiver for the property, who declared that there is no truth in such reports.

The brotherhood men, however, cite the date on which they declare the negro was driving an engine, with "a white man shoveling in the coal," saying the train was a local out of Standing Rock, Ala., on March 28.

With the further charge that the people's lives are not being properly safeguarded by the A., B. & A. railway officials, who are said to have employed incompetent men, the statement, which follows, is a sensational document:

From time to time inferences have been made by officials of the A., B. & A. railway that the derailments, etc., which have occurred, and the very few of which have been given publicity by the officials of that road, can be traced to "vandals," or strike sympathizers. The news item appearing in the press last night and today, reporting that one Lee Dodd, who was arrested on a warrant sworn out by union men who withdrew from the service of the A., B. & A. on March 5, was bound over to superior court by Judge J. P. Adams under $1,000 bond on a charge of rioting, at Fitzgerald, Ga., clearly demonstrates the high regard for the law the so-called strikers have, and that the indirect accusations made by the officials of the road that the term "vandals" is applicable to those who are out of the service, is absolutely unfounded, derogatory and unjustifiable.

In fixing the bond Judge Adams stated, in effect, that he is satisfied that the striking employees are peaceful and law-abiding citizens, and it is evident that his intentions are to protect them from being slandered.

Dodd had admitted, among other things, that he had been a detective at one time; had been in the employ of the M. & N. A. railway in Arkansas, where he and others of his type had practically wrecked that railroad. Right here is where attention should be called to a matter of utmost interest to the public—the public who risk their lives and property when using the so-called service provided by the A., B. & A. railway at this time. As is the custom in situations of this kind, railroad officials, through the medium of regular strike-breaking agencies, import what are known as professional strike-breakers, consisting largely of men not specialized in any trade, but who are willing to temporarily fill the positions vacated by the strikers, and at wages far in excess, and oftentimes double, of what had been paid the regular forces. From actual experience with this class of men we can authoritatively say that the greater part of them, as a rule, are radicals and the riff-raff and scum of the country, and with whom no self-respecting person would desire to associate. A few, of course, claim to have railroad experience, but it is that type who have been refused employment by officials of successful railroads, usually due to physical or character defects. This latter type will, perhaps, remain in the service as long as the officials of the A., B. & A. railway risk that property in the hands of such proven incompetent forces, the former type is willing to remain in the service just as long as the officials of the A., B. & A. are willing and able to compensate them at whatever rate the strike-breaking agency contracted their labor for, and in addition thereto receive free board, being housed by the road in Pullman cars, hotels and other places.

Charges by Brotherhood.

The public who risk their lives and property when traveling on the A., B. & A. trains should be made acquainted with such conditions as exist; for instance, the employment of an engineman with one eye who, if a cinder should become lodged in that one eye, would be in the same position as if there was a blind man at the throttle of the engine. Further, it has been authoritatively reported that on the eastbound local out of Standing Rock, Ala., on March 28, the engine was manned by a negro engineer who was at the throttle and a white fireman shoveling coal.

The lives of the mail clerks riding in mail cars hauled by the A., B. & A. are being jeopardized daily, since reports received indicate that in some instances mail cars are hauled on rear of trains, and often when the inexperienced and reckless train and engine crews run past stations, the trains are backed up to the station without proper flag protection, as required by the laws of safe train operation, and even as required by the rules of the road. To avoid axles from burning off en route due to lack of proper attention, these mail clerks, in order to protect their own lives, have been called upon to instruct this element employed to break this strike what to do.

Just recently one of these crews, while delivering cars to a connecting road and while on the latter's tracks, ran past a signal in the stop position, derailed two cars and narrowly avoided obstructing the parallel main line track, on which passenger trains were running and which could have run into the wreckage occasioned by the inefficient and inexperienced strike-breakers employed by the A., B. & A. railway, with the possible result of loss of life and property.

Derailments, running past meeting points, breaking up of cars, and many other near accidents, which would, if more trains were run, prove disastrous, are not made public by the A., B. & A. officials, evidently for fear that it would reflect unfavorably on them. However, when they are noticed by others, and press publicity given them, the officials immediately lay the blame on "vandals," but in reality the men employed by the officials of the railway are the real wreckers and destroyers of a property which under efficient management could be made one of the important roads in this section of the country. We anticipated men of Dodd's class would be brought in to wreck the property and that is the reason why the fourteen organizations offered a reward of $500. We are now going to prosecute Dodd to the full limit of the law, regardless of the cost.

Negro Is Acquitted.

Will Sanders, negro, was found not guilty of the murder of Linnie Middlebrooks, another negro, by a jury in the criminal division of the superior court Friday morning. The trial had been in progress for two days. Attorneys Harvey Hill and E. C. Bentley defended him.

INJUNCTION DENIED IN PHONE RATE CASE

Southern Bell Allowed to Charge Higher Rates in Gainesville.

Judge George L. Bell, in the civil division of the Fulton superior court Friday denied the petition of the city of Gainesville for an injunction to prevent the Southern Bell Telephone company from collecting an increase in rates in Gainesville, as authorized recently by the state railroad commission. The city will appeal the decision to the supreme court, it was announced.

The city of Gainesville through its attorney, C. N. Davis, contended that the city had a contract with the company to the effect that no increase would be made in telephone rates in Gainesville. It was also alleged that the company had over-valued its property in the city to the railroad commission when the increase of rates was granted.

The company, in its answer, declared it had never had a contract with the city of Gainesville, and that a contract with the Gainesville Chamber of Commerce was conditional on the fact that the railroad commission had authority at any time to delegate other rates.

Judge Bell held that the increase had been granted by a body lawfully constituted to grant such increases and it was not the business of his court to set aside the action of the railroad commission.

Washington, April 1.—Miss Mary Anderson was recommended oday by Secretary Davis for reappointment as director of the women's bureau of the department of labor.

ADMITS HE STOLE CAR, IMPLICATING SON OF DENTIST

Pleading guilty to a charge of automobile stealing and implicating Dr. Harry Holtzendorf, son of a local dentist, William Flannagan, 18 years old, Friday in criminal division of superior court had his sentence suspended by Judge Tarver until after Holtzendorf is tried and the matter entirely cleared up. Holtzendorf has been arrested and is under $3,000 bond for larceny of automobile. He denies Flannagan's statement in toto.

The boy said that on Thanksgiving he stole an auto and carried it to a garage rented by him under the name of Ward and paid for, he said, by Holtzendorf. After changing the appearance of the car, he charged, it was sold by Holtzendorf to an Alabama man. He further stated that Holtzendorf and Holtzendorf's father sent him to Jacksonville when the police began to search for him as Ward.

W. O. Flannagan, father of the boy, made a plea for clemency, saying that the deportment of his son had nearly killed his old mother and had nearly broken his father's heart.

Business Conditions Are Bad in France, Declares S. C. Dobbs

Business and political conditions of France are declared to be in a bad state, according to a letter recently received from S. C. Dobbs, well-known Atlanta business man and former president of the Coca-Cola company, who sailed for home on March 26 after traveling over Europe for the past two months.

Letters received by friends from Mr. Dobbs, dated from Paris on March 16, contained general views and observations on the business and political condition of the country, which are reported to be serious.

"In passing an exchange agency," he stated, "I stopped to look at some of the many kinds of money there, and none of it is worth very much. But in the center of the display was a $1 bill issued by the Federal Reserve bank in Atlanta and lots of people were looking at it. It surely looked good to me."

While abroad, Mr. Dobbs has had a very interesting trip, visiting a number of the most important cities of the continent.

WORTH A TRIAL.

There is hope and encouragement in the railroad employees' proposal to President Harding that both sides be given an opportunity to iron out their differences, and to reach an agreement "on all points in dispute," at the conference table.

Asserting that it is their desire to profit by the application of the principle laid down by the president in his inaugural address when he said, "I had rather submit our industrial controversies to the conference table in advance than to the settlement table after conflict and suffering," the organized rail workers, through B. M. Jewell, president of the railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor, have asked the administration to test out the feasibility and efficacy of the parley idea in reaching an amicable and fair basis of operation as between railroad employer and railroad employee.

Nothing could be fairer than that.

It indicates a spirit of willingness to give and take, and to be just and fair in its attitude toward industry.

Everybody knows that the rail transportation system of the country is in deplorable condition, and it is a condition by which everybody is directly or indirectly affected.

As matters stand, it is evident that the railroads cannot afford to maintain the present high level of the cost of operation, nor can business and the public prosper under existing freight and passenger rate conditions.

Freight rates cannot consistently be reduced without a simultaneous reduction of operating expenses.

The transportation lines are a public necessity.

And as between the railroads and the railroad employees, the interests of the two groups are essentially in common.

The one is dependent upon the other.

And there is a third group whose prosperity and happiness is dependent upon both, which group is the general public—of which both employer and employee is a part!

Once the workers and the employers thoroughly realize that each is dependent upon the other; that the basic interests of both are in common, and that each is under distinct obligations to the public, then the way to agreement upon "all points in dispute," or upon any and all differences that may arise, should be easy.

A settlement of existing differences by conference is at least worth a trial.

SECRET OF "GETTING ON."

Seventeen years ago a little Greek boy, George Galolis, eight years old and penniless, came to Atlanta and went to work as a bootblack.

Still a bootblack—rather, proprietor of the largest shoe-shining and clothes pressing establishment in the city, the same one in which he first shined a pair of shoes seventeen years ago — "Greek George" has just paid $55,000 in spot cash for a parcel of Atlanta realty that is worth every cent he gave for it.

"Work like hell and save like the devil"—that, says George, has been his guiding motto in life, and obedience to which has made him a rich man at 25.

System, for April, quotes J. N. Darling, more familiarly known as "J. N. Ding," perhaps the most popular topical cartoonist of his day, as having said recently, in giving his explanation of the whys and wherefores of his popularity among the newspaper readers of America, that "You can't get anywhere unless you're willing to work to get there."

"Ding," according to System, is a "glutton for work," and in addition to drawing "somewhat more than 500 cartoons a year," which is "hard work for him," he devotes about one-half of each "working day" to his duties as secretary of The Des Moines, Iowa, Register and Tribune company, in which position "Darling is far from a figurehead."

Mr. Darling, as suggested, does not attribute his success in the professional and business world to "genius," to "good luck," to any "gift" or happy combination of circumstances; but simply to "constant reading and study," of which he says, "it all helps, not only in cartooning, but also in my other business activities," and to downright hard "plugging," day in and day out.

"And," he says in System, "if more folks were willing to work their heads off, fewer of them would be complaining that business is poor!"

There is a deal of truth in that; and there is not a boy nor a young man in America, with his life's work before him, but who might read a helpful and valuable lesson in the recorded accomplishments of either "Greek George," the humble bootblack, or of J. N. Darling, the celebrated topical cartoonist.

WILL KAISER BE NEXT?

European statesmen and the European public are considerably disturbed by rumors, supported by significant physical indications, that former Emperor Charles, of Austria-Hungary, is planning a coup whereby to re-enthrone himself as the ruler of the present republic of Austria.

And Europe's apprehension is amply justified by recent events.

Constantine did in Greece exactly what Charles is said to be planning to do in Austria.

If Constantine could stage a "come-back," as internal division of Greek sentiment enabled him to do, why cannot Charles do likewise?

And if Charles succeeds in reinstating himself to the throne, will it not be possible for the former German kaiser, now in exile—as were both Constantine and Charles—to do the same thing?

That question is undoubtedly uppermost in the European mind at the present time; and certainly it justifies misgivings as to what the future holds, not for Europe alone, but for the whole world!

The allies vigorously opposed the return of Constantine to the Greek throne, but, having just fought and won a war for democracy, they could not consistently stand in the way of a submission of the whole question to a popular election by the people of Greece; and, the very opposition of the allies to Constantine put him somewhat in the position of a persecuted martyr in the minds of the Greek masses, and, in a spirit of traditional loyalty to their former king, they flocked to his standard and voted him back into the position from which he was forced to flee during the war.

With that development fresh in mind, the allied statesmen, apprehensive as they are, are extremely chary about officially or openly taking steps to prevent the return of the former Austrian monarch.

And the United States, as vitally interested in the long run as any of its former associate nations, is, thanks to the last senate, still technically at war with Austria-Hungary and Germany, outside the pale of the league of nations, and powerless to make its influence felt in the development of Europe's political affairs!

We can do nothing more than look on, hope for the best, and "trust to luck" that, having been deposed of their power as rulers, neither the former kaiser or the former emperor of Austria-Hungary, may get back into position enabling them to again upset the world and bathe it in blood.

The republican job hunters are not different—for they only want the earth and the offices thereof.

Greece is rushing the Turks, who never seem to know when they're at the jumping-off place.

A scientist predicts that the "toothless age" is coming That's when the price of beef will be in the soup.

This is the time when the "best minds" that failed to land a cabinet job are saying that the country is being run just as they suggested.

Hold out the hope of peach-and-honey to the weather prophets, and not one of 'em would try his hand at killing the fruit crop.

Germany's complaint is that she can't work and dodge the bill collector at the same time.

Today's Talk

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS.
(Copyright, 1921, for The Constitution.)

ONE MAN.

One man may be very great—if he decides that way.

He is full of that which we sometimes call influence. And influence is one of the greatest forces in the world. We wouldn't go far without it. We are led unconsciously by its touches.

We are influenced by the color of the sky, by the warmth of the sun, by the fragrance of the flowers, by the feel of the air.

But when a man steps out of somewhere and so wields and welds his personality into people and times that he brings order out of chaos and happiness where desolation was, then one is compelled to admit how great one man may be.

A friend, writing to me from the heart of an ancient empire, had this to say: "What a WORLD she is!"

One man may prove exceedingly able. He has to decide that for himself, however. Sitting upon some Sinai of vision, he may crystalize in his mind the secret hope of a thousand centuries. He may put his finger upon the pulse of a thousand wrongs as well. He may say: "I am going to help. I am going to be of use in the world."

And then it doesn't matter in detail as to what he puts his talents and energies, after such a decision.

You are one man. Or, maybe, you are one woman. Sex is neutral when affairs loom. Men and women are one when ideas begin to mix.

It wasn't so long ago when the peace of the world rested upon the decision of one man.

What the Stars Predict.

This is an unlucky day.

There is an indication that the United States will soon be involved in an important discussion of naval and military affairs.

Railway problems will again occupy the mind of the public, and there may be trouble over unfairness arising from freight rates.

The conditions of crops in England are not likely to be good this spring.

Persons whose birthday this is should use great caution in administering their money affairs and avoid speculation.

Children born today are likely to be quick-tempered and very charming and must have good, practical educations if they are to be successful.

OUR RUSSIAN TRADE

BY FRANK H. SIMONDS

The decision in the matter of trading with bolshevist Russia might well be described as the opinion of the American court written by Judge Hughes. It is one more intersting and conclusive evidence of the fact that the new secretary of state is a decisive force in the making of the foreign policy of the new administraton and not, as Washington gossip has characteristically hinted "window dressing" for a mere political cabinet. Judging from the course of events up to the present moment it is fair to assume first, that Mr. Hughes will be secretary of state and second that he may easily prove one of the few great secretaries in our history. Clarity of vision and expression and decision he has certaiply shown in recent instances which are at the least indicative of what is to come.

Looking at the Russian case for the moment, there is obviously just this to be said. Everyone knows that there is no trade to be had in Russia. The whole discussion of trading with Russia is, in pure American, no more than obvious "bunk." What is real in the situation is the hunt for concessions. We are seeing the beginning of a gigantic scramble for the loot of the Russian empire. Lloyd-George has surrendered to two influences, the labor group, which has used Russia as a campaign issue, and the financial group, which have looked to Russia as the "promised land."

There was danger, there is, perhaps, still danger, that the United States may be stampeded into a participation in this scramble, but Mr. Hughes, fully supported one may conjecture by Mr. Hoover, has momentarily prevented the stampeding of the American government by the British action. After all, as every one knows, British influences have been busy for months, perhaps for two full years, in the exploration of Russian possibilities. While we were sending such conspicuous humanitarions as Lincoln Steffens and W. C. Bullitt to make moral discoveries in red Russia, Great Britain was sending Columbuses of quite different character, seeking totally different ends.

Moonshine for Simple-minded.

The idea that the bolshevists have become capitalistic is only one more of the pieces of arrant moonshine which have been put forth from time to time to take in the simple-minded. Bolshevism has always had two weapons, a discontent of the radical elements in the same communities. Exploiting the former, it has sought to provoke and foment revolution in all western nations. But for the moment that game is up. The masses in western nations show not the least sign of any present rising.

But there remains the second string. Russia must have communications and mechanical equipment or die, that is bolshevist Russia. It is as unalterably opposed now as always to the creation of a Russia capitalistic state, to the erection of a capitalistic class in Russia. But it can afford, it must afford, to have capitalism from the outside save the economic life of Russia. It must be saved by its enemy, the foe it seeks to destroy, if it is to retain the capacity for continuing and renewing its assault upon capitalism everywhere, which is its reason for existence.

Lenin is Lenin and Trotsky is Trotsky. They have not changed, and they will not change, but they need help and the cheapest help they can obtain is from their enemy. Thus the single question is whether the cupidity of western nations can be exploited to save red Russia, against the moment when red Russia can return to the charge. Remember that Russia, the bolshevists were willing to cede to Germany at Brest Litovsk almost an unlimited fraction of the Russian estate to retain control of the balance. The trade proposal is a new application of the Brest Litovsk strategy, nothing more and nothing less.

Danger Still Exists.

Yet there was and there is danger that the issue which the "parlor bolshevists," notably in the United States and Great Britain, have made out of the Russian case and the issue which British labor has made may stampede us as it has stampeded the British. It needs cool and calm judgment to perceive that the advantages are illusory and the dangers solid, that bolshevism, with its back to the wall, is seeking aid from an enemy it still means to destroy. But this fact grasped, the making of a policy becomes easy.

Looking only on the material side, nothing is more certain than that if real Russia, a nationalistic Russia, a Russia of patriotism and sanity finally evolves from the present mess, it will hold in contempt and in hatred those nations which, for their own profit have shared in the plundering and destruction of the Russian nation. Mr. Wilson saw this fact, his administration wisely withheld its approval from the scheme of parting the raiment of the great slav nation. As a consequence of his policy the United States stands in the position where, for any restored Russia it must be the first and the single unselfish friend.

To sacrifice that position now and join in the scramble for loot is to come last to the feast, most discredited because our protestations of unselfishness are most recent, to lose exactly the price which could be the only axplanation for such a change of policy. On the other hand, to stand firm is to contribute mightily to the inevitable crash of the present regime, to contribute decisively to the ultimate destruction of bolshevism, itself, which is the enemy.

If bolshevism, saved by the intervention of western nations and by the concession scramble of western capitalism, regains its breath, it will turn upon its saviours, whose motives it understands, whose principles it has dedicated itself to destroy. Bolshevism has been and remains a state of war with our western civilization. It will destroy us or we shall destroy it. So far Mr. Harding confronts no such domestic issue as has led Lloyd-George to abandon every moral principle and strike hands with murder in the hope of getting votes at home and profit abroad.

Mr. Hughes has seen the point and expressed it with utter clarity. As a beginning in a real foreign policy it is more than a promise, it is a first fulfilment.

Significance of Final Cotton Ginning Report

The United States census bureau has issued the final gin returns on the cotton crop of 1920. The total gives a crop of 13,365,754 bales—500 pound weight—and shows an under-estimate by the federal crop reporting board last December of 378,754 bales.

The 1920 crop was the largest produced since 1914, and the seventh crop produced in the United States, exceeding 13,000,000 bales, all of which were produced since 1903.

For the first time, South Carolina takes second place in production and Georgia goes to third place. Georgia planted practically 5,000,000 acres in cotton last year, while South Carolina planted only 2,900,000 acres.

North Carolina still maintains the lead in production of lint cotton per acre, the average yield last year being 290 pounds. South Carolina followed with an average yield of lint cotton per acre of 277 pounds, Texas 190 pounds and Georgia only 142 pounds, while the average for the whole belt was 188 pounds. The ten-year average has been 182 pounds per acre.

Many thousands of bales of cotton were left in the fields, unpicked, in the Carolinas, Oklahoma and Texas, as the market prices for such extreme low grades would not cover the actual cost of picking, ginning and wrapping.

So large a crop in 1920 was extremely unfortunate, in the face of such limited consumption by the spindles of the world. The enormous excess of supplies and the light demand precipitated prices for the staple down to values of one-third the cost of production.

The growers cannot exist under these conditions and continue to grow large crops of cotton. Heavy curtailment of production, by drastic reduction in cotton acreage in 1921 is the only hope to bring consumption up to a parity with supplies, and advance prices to normal and profitable levels.

The American Cotton association has carried on an intensive acreage reduction campaign throughout the entire cotton belt since last November. Success or failure will be shown in the report to be issued by the association on cotton acreage reduction on May 28. The data upon which the final statistics will be tabulated and issued will be on reports made by its thousands of correspondents, representing every cotton county throughout the entire belt.

Upon the acreage planted to cotton this spring, will depend the price of the many millions of bales now being held by farmers from the crops of 1919 and 1920, as well as the crop to be produced this year. Every farmer will determine the question now, with all the lights before him, aided and advised by his supply merchant or banker.

The cotton acreage of 1921 will spell success or ruin, financially, for the cotton belt. There is but one proper solution to the problem, and that is to cut production half in two this year and prepare to live at home on home-raised food and feed crops.

American Cotton Association.

POSTAL EMPLOYEES CONFESS TO THEFT OF LIBERTY BONDS

Two former postal clerks, William D. Lewis and C. T. Hammock, Friday confessed in United States court to taking $13,400 in Liberty bonds and securities from the mails, destroying them later when they heard postoffice inspectors were on their trail. The men were arrested by Inspector N. A. McKew.

Hammock is less than 18 years old and was sent to the national training school at Washington for two years; Lewis was sentenced to serve two years in the federal penitentiary. The sentences were imposed by Judge Sibley.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

OXALIC ACID FOOD FALLACIES.

Nearly every fair to middling good doctor who sets up as an authority, or, blushing slightly though not painfully, let me say rather a teacher of hygiene and personal health, goes daffy on something or other. With me it is the catching cold superstition, they tell me; I am quite rabid on that subject. But I may say that, just as I am insane about the communicable character of the respiratory infections which well known (and politically heeled) health officers regularly declare are caused by low necks, thin stockings and zephyrous garments; so Dr. Dick seems to have flown off the handle on the subject of sugar for children or even for adults; and likewise Dr. Harry is a little queer on the subject of a vegetarian diet and subject of oxalic acid in food.

Oxalic acid is a rank poison. That's proposition No. 1, and there can be no debate about it.

Iodine is a rank poison. Yet we eat many things that contain iodine, and not only without injury, but with real benefit to health.

Here are a number of wholesome foods which contain more or less oxalic acid— they are listed in order, the items containing the most oxalic acid first:

(Esbach's determination as reported by Minkowski, published in "Diet in Health and Disease," by Drs. Friedenwald and Ruhrah. W. B. Saunders company, Philadelphia, Fifth Edition.)

In 1,000 grams of the food	Grams of Oxalic Acid.	In 1,000 grams of the food	Grams of Oxalic Acid.
Cocoa	4.5	Beets	0.4
Black tea	3.7	Beans	0.3
Spinach	3.2	Strawberries	0.06
Rhubarb	2.4	Tomatoes	0.05
Gooseberries	0.13	Carrots	0.03
Bread crust	0.13	Celery	0.02
Plums	0.12	Rose cabbage	0.02
Figs (dried)	1.0	Bread	0.047
Chocolate	0.9	Various flours	0 to 0.17
Potatoes	0.4	Coffee	0.1

Even chicory, if there is any used to adulterate or flavor coffee, contains 0.7 gram of oxalic acid to the thousand grams. Yet some of these foods should be avoided by ordinary individuals.

Oxalic acid is eliminated in the urine of the normal adult in the daily amount of 0.001 to 0.002 grams. If the normal acidity of the urine is diminished, the oxalic acid (as calcium oxalate crystals) may not be kept in solution, and this is sometimes a factor of stone formation in the kidney or bladder. There is also a state of ill health associated with the presence of oxalate crystals in the urine, of which the characteristics are dyspepsia, irritability depression of spirits lassitude and sometimes hypochondria, all of which may appear within a few days if the patient is kept on an oxalic-free diet and given suitable medicines to favor solution of oxalic acid or calcium oxalate in the urine.

It should be clearly understood that the acidity or sourness of a vegetable of fruit has no relation to the amount of oxalic acid it contains; and that foods containing oxalic acid have nothing to do with the production of acid stomach or acid urine or uric acid.

Among the best foods to oppose oxaluria and favor the solubility of oxalic acid in the urine are apples, rye flour bread, potatoes, beef beans, peas, sour milk, all fats, fish, weak coffee, rice, barley and hominy.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Fletcherizing Did It.

I have been Fletcherizing for the past 2½ years. Reduced from 230 pounds to 155 pounds. Am feeling fine. Although I am 46 years old I feel like sixteen year old kid. I eat but one meal a way, which I find satisfies me, under this plan. Good luck to you. (G. K.)

ANSWER—Horace Fletcher himself accomplished a similiar result, besides greatly improving his health and physical endurance. Those interested may read "Fletcher's "The New Gourmand or Epicure," which is published by Frederick A. Stokes company, New York city, and many can be obtained in most libraries.

The Effect of Calomel.

I was amazed at your statement that "calomel has no effect on the liver." Of course I know one always follows it with a good dose of salts, or should do so, and salts in in itself is enough to arouse most livers. But why give calomel, if it has no effect on the liver? (P. O.)

ANSWER—Neither has salts any particular effect on the liver. Calomel is a purgative by reason of its irritating the bowel. Salts is a purgative for the same reason, and salts further has an affinity for water which it extracts from the bowel lining. Any brisk purgative is likely to produce evacuations of bile (if the liver is functioning and there is no obstruction of the bile ducts). That may have accounted for the notion that calomel does something in particular to the liver. Calomel is a very old physic, and old things, in medicine, are always deemed good, even old doctors. Calomel is given today because it has been given by so many generations before us, but there is no other good reason for preferring calomel to other physics. Calomel has a proper place in the treatment of syphilitic conditions in children and in adults, but as a mere physic it is unjustifiable and ought to be dumped in the scrap-heap along with castor oil.

NEW RECORD MADE FOR CONVENTIONS HERE IN MARCH

During the month of March 45 meetings were held in the Convention City of Dixie, according to the record of the Atlanta convention bureau, of which 41 were conventions and 4 events, which brought a total of 14,200 visitors to the city, an average of 317 delegates to each meeting. This set a record for the number of conventions held so far during any one month, the record last year being 39 for the month of April.

A total of 101 meetings with a registration of 21,675 delegates were held during the first quarter of this year, or an average of 37 meetings each of the three months with average attendance of 7,225 delegates.

COTTON STALK LIVES THROUGH THE WINTER

A cotton stalk in Wilcox county has lived through the winter for the first time since the organization of the state department of agriculture, and has recently unfolded a cotton bloom. The bloom was sent to Commissioner J. J. Brown by H. C. Titschaw, a farmer, near Abbeville.

The fact that the stalk lived through the winter shows that the boll weevil has also survived the mild winter, according to Commissioner Brown, and indicates that the weevil will start its ravages on the coming crop early, and probably in large numbers. The bloom from last year's stalk, he said, bears out the warnings of the department of agriculture, which for a long time has maintained that the winter was not severe enough to kill off the weevil.

Bits of New York Life

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

New York, April 1.—There is a class of genial souls in New York who might be called intellectual vagabonds. They are quite distinct from the group of pseudo intellectual wastrels who are the professional habitues of Gotham's Bohemia. The intellectual vagabond has, as a rule, done something worth while—a first-class novel, a painting of merit or a bit of poetry.

But their ambition seems to have been spent in one spurt and so they fall back into the easy path of doing an occasional 'pot boiler," an advertising picture or a jingle for a tooth brush maker.

When the rent becomes too long overdue they grind out a "red-blooded" piece of fiction and take it around to one of the cheaper magazines and sit in the outer office until it has been read and accepted and the cashier's ticket handed to them.

There is a poet who has had several volumes of his poems published, but since then the Muse has become coy and reluctant until the pangs of hunger assail him and then he goes to newspaper offices, borrows a pencil and pad and dashes off a poem. He rarely fails to dispose of it on the spot for from $10 to $15.

And one can live a long time in Bohemia on $15 if he knows the attic formulas. It is a devil-may-care existence that leads from one dingy basement table d'hote to another, breakfasting in the late afternoon and eating a full cheap-wine washed meal at midnight.

These vagabonds are not poseurs. They care little what the world thinks and most of them believe that they have found the real way to happiness. The "serious thinkers" amuse them as much as they do other folk. If they experience some chance financial windfall they board a tramp steamer to Europe and visit the Montmartre section of Paris for a time—and then drift back and into old ways.

Professional ball players sometimes declare that no ball player ever becomes rich and that the only men connected with the game who do are the club owners—and yet Harry Stevens, who has dispensed pop and peanuts and programs to Polo Ground fans for ten years is popularly reported to be worth three millions. He came to New York without a penny and got a job as a program boy at the National league park. He saw the vast opportunities and secured the concession. It required a substantial sum to secure this, but Stevens went down into Wall street, wheedled his way into a banker's private office and left with the check for the amount. The banker had never seen him before.

A beautiful woman, elegantly costumed, with a head of flaming hair stepped from a limousine at the canopied entrance to the Hotel Vanderbilt. Down the steps came a smartly dressed man who had been waiting for her. He removed his hat.

"Hello, Red," he called.

"How are you, Mike?" she answered.

And then they tripped up the steps and into the afternoon tea room.

A man who appreciates New York's four-flushing tendencies has started an automobile renting agency. He will provide for $50 an evening an automobile with liveried attendants and on the door he will have pasted in small letters the name of the renter—just as though it belonged there. Also the chauffeurs are instructed to call the renters by name and to act like the car is really the property of the renters.

M'CORD SPEAKER AT MONTHLY MEET OF ECONOMIC BODY

The monthly meeting of the Atlanta Economic society was held Wednesday evening at the Ansley hotel, and a delightful dinner was enjoyed by the members. After the dinner Joseph A. McCord delivered an address on "The relation of the federal reserve bank to General financial conditions." Mr. McCord interestingly reviewed the history of government banking system, issuance of currency and the basis of banking credit. After the address a "round table" was enjoyed.

Among those present were Dr. C. B. Wilmer, Professor T. J. Johnson, Emory university, and R. E. Harvey, W. J. McNair, Walter Candler, E. A. Bancker, W. T. Perkerson, John Bell, Charles Loridans, Paul E. Rapier, Frank Hempstead, Joel Hunter, J. W. Speas and others.

At the next meeting of the society, to be held in the month of April, Dr. C. B. Wilmer will make a talk on the single tax theory made famous by Henry George.

COMMISSIONS OPEN FOR ORDNANCE MEN

An opportunity has been afforded members of the national guard, the enlisted reserve corps or officers' reserve corps, and to graduates of technical institutions to obtain commissions in the ordnance department of the United States army, according to an announcement issued by officers of the Fourth corps area, with headquarters at Fort McPherson.

It was stated that applicants for commissions must be citizens of the United States and between the ages of 21 and 30 years. Preliminary examinations are now being held at Fort McPherson to determine the qualifications of the candidates for commissions in preparation for final examinations, to take place at Fort McPherson beginning April 25. Full information concerning the scope of examinations and forms of applications for commissions may be obtained at the ordinance office, Fort McPherson, or from the professor of military science and tactics at Georgia Tech.

EASTERN HOTEL MEN WILL VISIT CITY ON TUESDAY

Atlanta convention bureau announces that on Tuesday, April 5, a party of eighteen hotel men from leading hotels of the eastern part of the country will stop over in Atlanta for a stay of five hours. The party is headed by Charles E. Gehring, of New York city, publisher of the Hotel Review, one of the leading hotel magazines of the world. The hotel men will arrive at the Terminal station at 6:05 o'clock Tuesday morning via the Southern railroad and will remain until 11:30 o'clock, when they will depart for Birmingham, New Orleans and Galveston, where they will attend the Southern Interstate Hotel Men's association convention on April 6 to 8.

They are traveling in special chartered Pullmans, and will be met upon their arrival at the Terminal station by members of the Atlanta Hotel Men's association and Colonel F. J. Paxon, president of the Atlanta convention bureau. At 7:30 o'clock a breakfast will be held in their honor at the Piedmont hotel, where W. C. Royer, manager of the Piedmont, and president of the Atlanta Hotel Men's association, will preside, after which a visit to hotels of the city will be made and an automobile ride will be enjoyed, ending at the Brookwood station in time for the guests to catch a train at 11:30 o'clock.

REVIVAL SERVICES AT COLORED CHURCH

Members of the First Congregational church, colored, Houston and Courtland streets, have been conducting a "be your own evangelist" revival at the church, and great good is resulting. On account of the scarcity of evangelists, the pastor, Rev. Russell Brown, submitted to his people the idea of getting close enough to God to revive themselves, and the meetings have been intense.

Sixteen were baptized last Sunday and interest continues. Meetings are to be continued next week in the form of progressive district services. The pastor speaks Sunday morning on the subject, "Peonage, the result of neglected undercurrents."

FOUR COMPLETE DEFENSE IN MACON

Special Session Federal Court Called by Judge Evans to Hasten End of Express Trials.

Macon, Ga., April 1.—After the defense of only four of the remaining forty-six defendants on trial on charges of conspiracy to rob the American Railway Express company of a million dollars in merchandise was completed this afternoon, during a five-hour session of federal court given over entirely to the defense, Judge Beverly D. Evans announced that in an effort to speed up the trial a session will be held tomorrow.

Sir Charles Davidson, formerly chief justice of the supreme court of Quebec, who heard the Greene and Gaynor case in the legal fight to extradite those defendants to Georgia for trial several years ago, was on the bench beside Judge Evans during today's session of court.

The four defendants whose cases were completed today were L. B. Rodgers, Troup Floyd, D. G. Stokes and Dan McLendon. All four with the exception of McLendon denied practically every charge made against them by the government's star witness, W. A. Hughes.

McLendon admitted the transactions with Hughes, two deals for bacon and one for silverware. McLendon said that his wife advised him not to buy knives and forks from Hughes, but he said that he made the purchase.

Denies Buying Shoes.

"I never even knew that Hughes had shoes to sell," declared J. W. Mills, news butcher, to whom Hughes had said that he had sold a pair of shoes from an express shipment.

"Don't you know if you admitted buying those shoes you might be called upon to take a seat over there?" asked Assistant District Attorney Powers, pointing to the seats occupied by the defendants.

The court ordered Mills not to answer the question.

W. J. Stokes, a messenger for six years, running between Albany and Boston, Ga., said he had never stolen anything from the express company. "Hughes put some tires on my run one time," said Stokes when questioned about alleged transactions with Hughes. "He told me, 'I've put some tires on your run; dispose of 'em.' I said, 'I don't do that kind of business.'"

Misrouted Tires.

Stokes said that the tires were put on at Albany and that he did not have them to throw them out. He said that he found the misrouted tires and put them off at Boston, and asked Mr. Mills to ship them to their destination, Pensacola. Under cross-examination Stokes said it wasn't customary to report men for making a proposal as Hughes had made. L. B. Rodgers, of Albany, who took the stand to tell of an alleged transaction with J. A. Bradshaw, who has never been arrested.

"He bought one suit from Bradshaw," said Rodgers. "The trousers were too short for him, and he wanted to sell them. He came into the office at Albany, where I was, and I offered him $25 for the suit. He took the suit right off and I put it on."

unusually appealing personality. Upon his father's death last December he inherited a $25,000 estate. Owns Cadillac coupe. Sales manager for one of the largest auto concerns in the city."

Despite the fact that Little denied any knowledge of the letters, the inspectors confiscated those he had already received when they intervened while he was awaiting replies at the classified advertising window of a local newspaper, it is charged.

One of the replies, evidently an attempt at giving as good as received, follows:

GRAHAM WRIGHT TO ASSIST BRAND

ard, however, when called over long distance telephone by The Constitution, refused to state whether he had decided to accept the case.

"When Governor Dorsey decided to send Mr. Wright to Jasper county to lead the prosecution of the charges against Williams and his sons," said Solicitor Brand. "I immediately requested him to allow the assistant attorney-general to aid in Newton county.

Evidence to Be Same.

"The evidence we will use next week will largely be the same as submitted to the Jasper county grand jury and Mr. Wright will also have an opportunity to familiarize himself with the procedure of the defense.

"It was understood," he continued, "since I made this request and conferred with Mr. Wright that he was to participate in the Newton county trial. I know nothing of the employment of any other counsel."

Greene F. Johnson, leading counsel for Williams, remained in Atlanta Friday preparing for the trial. He held a long conference with his client in the Fulton county tower, where he has been held since his arrest last week. While Mr. Johnson stated Thursday that it was possible that he might not be ready for trial Wednesday, it is believed now that he will be fully prepared.

Preparing for Trial.

Solicitor Brand spent a busy day in Newton and Jasper counties Friday preparing for the trial of Williams. He was accompanied on his tour of investigation by Sheriff B. L. Johnson, of the Newton county superior court, who has taken a leading part in probe of the "death farm."

"So far as investigations in Jasper county are concerned," Sheriff Johnson informed The Constitution on his return, "we are through. As you know, we have no jurisdiction in Jasper, and it is not our desire to intervene in the affairs of its officials. Most of our work today has been confined to Newton county. There were several problems in the cases against Williams which needed clearing, and it was for this purpose that we made our probe today."

With a number of federal agents at his disposal, Solicitor Brand has been directing the investigation, and he stated that he was now ready for the trial. He would not reveal the line of procedure he will take in the trial, but indicated that he had corroborated Manning's confession.

Jasper Investigation.

In Jasper county, investigation of both the peonage and murder cases are being pushed. Sheriff W. J. Persons told The Constitution over the long distance telephone. While these cases are being probed by the officials, the lynching of Eugene Anderson, a negro, is also being investigated by federal and county officials.

"We are making a very rigid investigation of all clues and evidence in our hands," said the sheriff. "This afternoon we went to the Williams farm to investigate rumors we had received here to the effect that several of the negroes on and near the place had disappeared during the past several weeks. All the parties reported missing, however, were found at their homes."

The sheriff was asked if he expected any sensational developments to result from his investigations.

"As the case now stands, we are depending in a large measure on the evidence which will be put at our disposal by Solicitor Brand, Sheriff B. L. Johnson and federal agents. With this evidence and that which we have gathered ourselves during the past week," he continued, "we expect important developments when the grand jury convenes here Monday week."

Not Seeking More Bodies.

Sheriff Persons was then asked to state whether any search had been made for more missing bodies, and he replied in the negative.

"At present we have no evidence which would aid us in any search. My deputies, however, are busily engaged on the case, and we may have some announcement relative to a search after the grand jury meets."

Vincent Hughes, head of the federal agents in Georgia, stated that Clyde Manning, the negro whose confession implicated Williams in the murder of the eleven negroes, had given government officials some valuable information regarding alleged peonage cases on the Williams plantation. He reported that the investigation was proceeding satisfactorily, and that considerable evidence had been amassed.

ASKS FOR RIGHT OF INTERVENTION

Southern Traffic League Seeks to Become Party to Dispute of Mechanics and Western Railroad.

Having been denied the privilege of becoming a party to the dispute of the International Association of Mechanics against the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway, before the United States railroad labor board, which privilege was also denied the National Industrial Traffic league, the Southern Traffic league, which represents practically all the shippers in the southern states, has presented a petition, renewing its efforts to become, with the national league, a party to the above case by intervention.

The Southern Traffic league, which has headquarters in Montgomery, Ala., sets up in its petition that the only way in which the public may become a party to the controversies, such as the one named above, is by intervention, and that had it not been the intention of congress for the public thus to become party to these disputes the provision would not have been made for the representatives of the public to intervene.

Asks for Reconsideration.

The petition of the Southern Traffic league declares that a special study has been made of the wage controversy involved between the mechanics and the A., T. & S. F. railroad, and expresses the desire that it be allowed to make the petition of the National Industrial Traffic league its own, and requests that the railroad labor board reconsider its former order, declining to allow the intervention of the above named traffic leagues.

The petition follows:

Honorable R. M. Barton, Chairman United States Railway Labor Board, Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir: At a recent meeting of the Southern Traffic league, an organization consisting of the representatives of practically all of the shippers and receivers of freight in the south, including traffic departments, appointed a special committee to study the questions now pending before your honorable body in case No. 101.1, and to make a recommendation to the board of governors as to what action, if any, the league should take.

After a thorough study of the questions brought into issue in the case of the International Association of Mechanics, et al., versus Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company et al., this special committee of the Southern Traffic league, with the approval of the board of governors, adopted and made its own, the intervening petition of the National Industrial Traffic league, which has been presented to you in the case above referred to and which petition of the national organization was denied by your honorable body on March 26.

The Southern Traffic league desires to petition your board for authority to intervene in the above named proceeding and respectfully adopts, as its own, the intervening petition of the National Industrial Traffic league and further urges your board to reconsider its order declining to allow the National Industrial Traffic league to become a party to the proceedings.

You have declined to allow the National Industrial Traffic league to become a party to the present proceeding under an interpretation you have placed upon Section 309 of the transportation act, reading as follows:

"Any party to any dispute to be considered by an adjustment board or by the labor board shall be entitled to a hearing, either in person or by counsel."

Transportation Act.

An interpretation of this section should be made in the light of other sections of the same act and I invite your respectful attention to Section 303 of the transportation act, reading in part as follows:

"Three members, constituting the public group, representing the public, to be appointed directly by the president, by and with the advice and consent of the senate."

If the public cannot become a party to the proceeding and it would not be in the public interest to hear from the public in the matter pending before your board, it would not have been the intent of congress to specifically provide for three members of your board to constitute the public group and to represent the public. The composition of your board requires three members, constituting the labor group, representing the employees and subordinate officials of the carriers; three members constituting the management group, representing the carriers and three members constituting the public group, representing the public.

If the public in fact cannot intervene and become a party to proceedings before you and the door is closed to only hearing from the managemeut group and the employees' group of the carriers, the public group, represented on your board and designated to represent the public, will be only able to base their decisions upon information which they have secured from the testimony and exhibits introduced by parties belonging to the employees group and the management group of the carriers. The public can never become a party to your proceedings except through intervention petitions. The public can only become a party to any dispute being considered by the labor board, by being allowed to be made a party.

Can Become Party.

It's not a party in the first instance, but can become a party by intervention and once having become a party, is entitled to a hearing either in person or by counsel. You cannot deny the public to intervene in the proceeding, because it's not a party in the first instance. It only becomes a party to the proceeding when you allow the intervening petition and there is nothing in the transportation act creating the railway labor board excluding the public from being heard in controversies arising before it, but on the other hand, specifically provides for representation on your board of three members constituting the public group which is exactly the same number designated from the employees' group and the management group of the carriers.

For congress to establish a tribunal the personnel of which shall, in equal parts, represent the public, the railway management and the railway employees and then to exclude as a party to any proceeding before the board "the public" would be a futile thing and serve to defeat, to a large extent, the very purpose for which the board was established.

Wherefore, the petitioner, the Southern Traffic league, respectfully requests and urges the United States railway labor board to reconsider its decision, denying the intervening petition of the National Industrial Traffic league and issue an order permitting the National Industrial Traffic league to become a party to the proceeding and allow the Southern Traffic league to adopt and make its own, said intervening petition of the National Industrial Traffic league. Respectfully submitted.

M. M. CASKIE, Chairman.

Special Committee.

Co-operation of Churches Marks Revival Services

Co-operation between churches of different denominations is one of the salient features of the simultaneous evangelistic campaigns being conducted by 80 churches in this city. Besides the daily union service conducted at Wesley Memorial church by Rev. George Stoves, of Nashville, Tenn., the churches of different faiths are combining in conducting their own services.

The North Avenue Presbyterian church and the Ponce de Leon Methodist church will unite in the former church building for the revival services, starting Sunday and continuing until April 17, with meetings at 7:45 o'clock every night except Saturday. Rev. Charles F. Myers, pastor of the First Presbyterain church of Greensboro, N. C., will conduct the services, and the two church choirs will combine. Boys' classes have been held nightly at the North Avenue Presbyterian church, led by Irwin Ennis.

Great Union Service.

A great union service, for all churches participating in the revival campaign, will be held Monday morning at 11 o'clock at the Baptist Tabernacle, when Rev. W. W. Hamilton, in charge of the evangelistic work of the Baptist group, will preach. The Presbyterian churches will begin a series of daily union services Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock at the Harris Street Presbyterian church.

Rev. Dr. Stoves is daily conducting an evening service at the Wesley Memorial church, besides the morning union service. He will address a mass meeting in the church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when the large chorus will sing under the leadership of A. C. Boatman and his wife.

Sunday will be observed as Decision day at the Walker Street Methodist church, where revival services have been attracting large congregations all this week. Rev. J. S. Strickland, the pastor, preaches twice daily, at 3 o'clock in the afternoons and again at 7:30 at night. He will preach Sunday morning on "Scriptural Holiness" and in the evening at a special service. The Sunday school will meet at 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning. O. L. Sutton is leading the music at the revival meetings at this church.

Young People's Night.

Friday night was observed as Young People's night, at the Second Baptist church, Rev. Harry A. Porter, the pastor, preaching the sermon, and James W. Jelks leading the singing.

The Inman Park Methodist church, where Rev. Plato Durham is assisting in the special services, and the Druid Hills Methodist church, have both been crowded all week. The Druid Hills church will hold a service for men only Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and holds a daily service every morning at 10 o'clock. The Inman Park church is conducting daily morning services at 9:30 o'clock. St. Luke's church is holding services in a tent and has had large attendance at all services. Trinity church has secured about 30 converts during the week, the largest number yet reported.

Secretary Stokes, who prior to his connection with local national headquarters of the National Association of Building Exchanges acted as secretary of the Erie, Pa., exchange and has had extensive experience in this work, will from now on direct activities of the national organization from Atlanta, governors as to what action, if any, the league should take. and states that the association will maintain its efforts to restore activity in building, which he states is at present only 40 per cent of normal.

Mr. Stokes takes an optimistic view of the situation and is confident that the work of his organization will go forward instituting a sound resumption of national building.

millions for protection in all parts of the United States, and which will spend an enormous amount here to defend those connected with it. It will be necessary for our attorneys to bring witnesses here from a long distance, even from Mexico, and to pay their expenses. Some investigations have already been made by those attached to the courts, but further investigations of a most important nature in behalf of the public must be made. We believe that the amount asked for is conservative. Those who subscribe should do so through Mr. J. S. Kennedy, of the Atlanta National Bank. He is acting as treasurer. He will receive any contributions, receipting for same and reporting regularly to this committee.

"We have sent out circular letters soliciting funds. It will be impossible for us to circularize all organizations and individuals interested. This expression from the committee must be accepted as a desire to receive a contribution from every citizen and every organization interested."

Activities of this citizens committee were denounced Friday by Robert P. Jones, attorney for Detective Lieutenant Shaw, one of the police officials under fire. He declares that the committee has evidently prejudiced the case that it is obvious from the committee's actions that its verdict in the case is already written.

Dr. C. B. Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's church, who had been advertised to speak on the corruption charges before the social workers society Friday, studiously avoided making any reference to that subject in his talk on the ground that he considered it would be violating the proprieties. His speech was an appeal for the abolition of the fee system and the commercialization of penal labor.

ALLIES PROTEST HAPSBURG RETURN

inside political sources in Budapest indicate that persons who compromised themselves in the adventure already are seeking a way out. The firm attitude of the entente and the menace of the military power of the Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania are said to have brought even the maddest monarchists to sanity. Although military impotent, Austria's uncompromising attitude showed them they could look for no aid here.

It is learned that diplomatic circles here this morning received assurances from Budapest that Charles now realizes the futility of his hope and is prepared to return to his Swiss exile. It is understood he will await the action of the Hungarian parliament this afternoon and bow as gracefully as possible to its constitutional decree against him, which already has been foreshadowed in the Vienna monarchist organs.

The police are endeavoring to learn where Charles spent Good Friday night, but as the caretaker of the palace of Count Erdody, one of the former emperor's supporters, is the count's father-in-law, it has been difficult to make him talk about visitors to the castle.

It was learned today that a few days preceding Easter at least twenty young aristocrats and former officers applied for permits to travel, gave Steinamanger their destination and snipe shooting as the object of their trips. It has been noticed that many aristocrats have been prolonging the Easter stay in their country homes, despite the chill weather.

WOULD ISSUE PROCLAMATION.

Steinamanger, Western Hungary, April 1.—Former Emperor Charles declared here this morning that his departure from Hungary would be conditioned upon permission to issue a proclamation to the Magyars explaining the "unfavorable circumstances" compelling his withdrawal and saying that he, as king, temporarily confirmed the regency of Admiral Horthy.

The former ruler made this declaration upon receiving a refusal from Admiral Horthy, the regent, that he be allowed to return to Budapest, coupled with a threat of military measures against him.

ASSEMBLIES FAVOR REPUBLICAN RULE.

London, April 1.—Both the Austrian and the Hungarian assemblies have voted against the restoration of the monarchy. Vienna reports announce that the Austrian assembly amid tremendous cheering voted unanimously in favor of the maintenance of the republican system. Budapest advices state that the national assembly reconvened and passed a resolution supporting Admiral Horthy's attitude. This message stated that ex-Emperor Karl would start to Switzerland Saturday under Austrian safeguards. The Hungarian assembly adjourned until Tuesday.

BISHOP HEADED PLOT FOR COUP.

Budappest, April 1.—Bishop Rott of the diocese of Besszprem was, according to the best information obtainable here, the preponderating influence in urging former Emperor Charles to attempt to regain the Hungarian throne.

It is alleged also that the anti-semitic organization "awakening Hungary" had an important share in the plot. Its president, Deputy Szmrechanvi, has been placed under virtual arrest.

VATICAN DENIES ADVANCE KNOWLEDGE.

Rome, April 1.—The Osservatore Romano, the vatican organ, denies that the vatican had advance knowledge of the intention on former Emperior Charles to return to Hungary.

Attack Is Made On Fee System By Dr. Wilmer

Commercialization of Penal Labor Charged by Atlanta Pastor.

Taking as his subject "Community Responsibility for Crime," Dr. C. B. Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's church, Friday afternoon before the Social Workers' club launched an attack upon the existing system of enacting laws, the fee system and commercialization of penal labor.

Alleged conditions in Jasper and Newton counties were held up to light by the minister in connection with commercialization of penal labor, and he declared the fee system "a wrong idea of trying to make crime pay for itself." The state and city of Atlanta must face existing conditions and adopt means to remove the causes of evil, he said.

He listed as among the "approximate causes" of crime the present system of law enforcement, the fee system and commercialization of penal labor, and advocated a civic league of 50 to 100 members to study these subjects and prepare remedial bills to be submitted to the legislature.

Among the "remote causes" he listed lack of honesty of purpose and intelligent methods in the human heart and then touched again on the fee system, saying:

"What is the cause of the fee system? The wrong idea of trying to make crime pay for itself without burdening the taxpayers," he declared. He then scored the indifference of citizens generally towards public welfare and the state and the church, declaring that "anyone who neglects the church neglects the foundation of the cleansing of human hearts."

With reference to community responsibility, Dr. Wilmer declared that "the chamber of commerce, which is talking about spending money to advertise Georgia, might as well throw the money into the Chattahoochee, when the free advertising the state is getting is enough to convince people that life and liberty within its bounds are not safe."

The minister opened his remarks with the statement that he would be "several kinds of a fool in addition to an April fool" if he had elected to speak on the subject assigned him, which was "Issues involved in the controversy between the solicitor-general and the heads of the police and detective departments."

THE CONSTITUTION'S FINANCIAL NEWS AND REVIEWS

Wall Street Is Puzzled By Big Gold Shipments

BY R. L. BARNUM

New York, April 1.—Prices were a fraction lower at the opening this morning with the volume of business very light. During the early trading Texas Co., Mexican Petroleum and a few other specialties were sold, but no headway was made and the market grew very dull. Shortly afternoon under the leadership of Studebaker and Chandler the tone of the whole market became better. Harvester, which suffered a collapse yesterday and the day before, gave a good account of itself today.

A shipment of $1,700,000 gold arrived today from abroad on the Adriatic and one of $36,000 from Jamaica. The National City bank announced that $3,500,000 gold had been engaged to leave Southampton tomorrow on the Aquitania. Wall street is still in the dark as to the source of the heavy shipments to us of gold from abroad. Some of our bankers are of the belief that if these shipments continue we will have a "white elephant" on our hands. "We will have the satisfaction of seeing our reserve up to 60 or 70 per cent," one banker commented, "with our rivals abroad having only 10 per cent. But what are we going to do with it?" The answer to that is that so far for the past few months the average business man has suffered not from too much credit but from too little. If gold is going to make it easier to borrow money, the average business man will say, may the inflow of the yellow metal continue.

In connection with the hardships many are experiencing in raising needed funds it was learned today that the Atlantic Gulf had succeeded in getting a renewal for three months of bank loans maturing here. But it was added that the company was still negotiating for between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000 that must be raised. Wall street is closely watching developments in this company.

Close watch is also being kept on the trend of steel prices. As yet there i sno sign of the expected big cuts. During the past week the average price of eight principal iron and steel products declined to $58.55 against $58.89 a week ago, $59.70 a month ago, $86.70 a year ago and $63.49 the level maintained by the steel corporation. Today is 8 per cent below. Wall street does not believe that there will be any change in the policy of the steel corporation until Gary gets back within the next two weeks. What will be done then depends largely on the outlook for changes in railway wages and freight rates. These very important factors in the general business situation are closely linked together.

Much gossip was heard today regard the possible outcome of next week's dividend meetings. American Leather directors are expected to meet Monday and pass the dividend. On Tuesday Kelly-Springfield is expected to pass the cash dividend and continue the stock payment. On Thursday United States Rubber directors meet. The action is still uncertain. General Motors is expected to continue the quarterly 25 cents if the meeting is held next week. It may be postponed.

Well informed Wall street was not surprised at the action taken by the New York Central directors in officially announcing that they could not recognize the "right or propriety" of S. Davies Warfield and his national association of owners of railroad securites in inviting railroad labor to hold a conference with railway officials with the object of straightening out the existing wage tangle. Well informed Wall street has known for a long time that Warfield with his many personally conducted plans for settling all of the troubles of the railroads was riding for a fall. The big people in Wall street who really do things have never taken Warfield at his own valuation.

Conditions in both the money market and the general trade during the month of March are reflected in the figures available today showing the amount of new financing done by our railroads and industrial companies. The total was only $138,707,000, the smallest in nearly two years. For March of last year the total was $275,771,000. For the first quarter of this year the total was $694,000,000 against $816,000,000 for the same period of 1920 and $583,000,000 for 1919. During this March the railroads put only $2,436,000 bonds and $5,214,000 notes a total of $7,650,000 with the industrials floating $43,014,000 bonds, $61,774,000 notes and $26,263,000 stocks. Those last named figures are in themselves highly significant showing that most of the new financing was done with short term notes.

In its nationwide review of business conditions made public today for March the federal reserve board at Washington states that aside from a revival in the automobile, textile and footwear industries there was little change from the preceding months, adding, "an attitude of greater hopefulness on the part of the business community and the expression of the opinion on the part of the commercial leaders that distinct improvement in domestic conditions is in sight represents a forecast rather than an analysis of actual facts. The extent to which these conditions are warranted cannot now be determined." That, as Wall street sees it, is an accurate picture of existing conditions.

If there is any truth in the old saying that misery loves company there should be some comfort in the foregoing to the individual business man who thinks that his row just now is the very hardest in the whole field of industry to hoe. And for the country as a whole it should be some comfort to read in today's headlines, "Britain faces peril of great rail strike," "Allies warn Hungary that disaster will result if former Emperor Charles is restored," "Belgians passing through crisis," "stringent money in New Zealand." The facts are that there really is no basis for comparison. Compared with other countries we are already out of the mess created by the war upheaval.

STOCKS IRREGULAR IN DULL SESSION

Atlantic Gulf Drops 6½ Points—Studebaker and Few Specialties Move Upward.

New York, April 1.—In its salient and more material characteristics, trading on the Stock Exchange today covered the ground made more or less familiar by recent confusing and wavering tendencies, losses predominating at the irregular close.

Shares of the same class frequently moved in opposite directions. Only in a few noteworthy instances was there any evidence of more than professional, or speculative interest, many of the investment rails reflecting further neglect.

Trading was most active in the last hour, when heavy selling of Atlantic Gulf at a net loss of 6½ points was the outstanding feature. The stock was freely offered on reports that the company had failed in its negotiations to sell some of its oil holdings and tankers to the Mexican Petroleum company.

Oils as a class were heavy throughout, the so-called Doheny group reacting 1 to 3 points, with General Asphalt, Texas Company, Royal Dutch and others of less prominence.

Studebaker, Harvester, United Drug and Laclede Gas at net gains of 1 to 5½ points, comprised the few elements of comparative strength. Sales amounted to 575,000 shares.

Latest financial and industrial advices offered no incentive for public participation. Time funds evinced a firmer tone on less liberal offerings, and labor conditions here and abroad became more involved or unsettled.

London's market was depressed by the strike of the coal miners and the decision of the Manchester spinners to continue short time in mills using American cotton was not without effect on that staple in home markets. Dealings in foreign exchange were curtailed and rates on London and other European centers were inclined to ease.

The bond market was dull, with price changes narrow in the main. Pennsylvania Railroad 6's made yet another low record at 95¾. Liberty issues and foreign war flotations were somewhat mixed. Total sales, par value, $8,875,000.

New York, April 1.—The cotton market made a fairly steady showing during today's earlier session, but weakened later, owing to nervousness over British labor conditions, Liverpool selling and scattering liquidation. May deliveries sold off from 12.25 to 11.87 and closed at 11.89, with the general market closing easy at a net decline of 25 to 36 points.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to and advance of 11 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables. There were reactions of several points right after the call under scattered southern selling, but private cables from Liverpool stated that the beginning of the British coal strike had been discounted and the market steadied up again later in the morning on covering for over the week-end. The action of the Liverpool market was evidently a disappointment to some recent sellers here while there was very little southern selling after the first half hour and general business so quiet that prices responded to comparatively small orders. No support of consequense developed, however, and liquidation became a little more active during the afternoon, owing to the appearance of a few orders from Liverpool and bearish week-end figures. July sold off from 12.74 to 12.40 and October from 13.25 to 12.88, with the market closing at the lowest levels of the day and week. One of the Liverpool cables received this morning said that Manchester was still improving, but another stated that spinners there had decided to continue on the short time schedule. Further developments there are expected to depend largely on the labor situation and the comparatively small volume of business here during the day was attributed to the uncertainties in this respect.

Exports today 1,515, making 3,752,781 so far this season. Port receipts 12,393; United States port stocks 1,389,552.

NEW YORK SPOTS.

New York, April 1.—Cotton, spot quiet; middling 12.00.

MAY CLOSES AT LOW; SELLING IS HEAVY

New Orleans, April 1.—After a flash of strength on the opening today the cotton market fell off under an unfavorable opinion of the British labor situation, and continued to sag in a gradual way, showing its greatest weakness in the late trading, when it reached net declines of 31 to 36 points, closing 31 to 34 down. May traded as low as 11.51 and closed at its lowest. Heaviest selling was induced by a cablegram from a shipping concern at London expressing the opinion that the coal strike would be of long duration.

Momentarily on the first call the near months were 7 to 8 points higher in sympathy with a better market in Liverpool than due. Prices there were sustained, according to private cablegrams, and accounts of a much better business in the Manchester. After May touched 11.89 selling increased, and during the remainder of the session the market got no real support from any quarter.

Telegrams from Fall River, estimating the week's sales of print cloths at 70,000 pieces, against 200,000 last week, and Hester's figures on world takings of 137,000 bales of American cotton against 159,000 this week last year and 148,000 this week two years ago, increased the pressure against the market. Weather conditions over the belt were considered unfavorable, because of rains in some localities and low temperatures in others and steadied the market at the decline for a while.

PROFESSIONAL VIEWS ON COTTON SITUATION

New Orleans, April 1.—(Special.)—Pending further developments in the labor situation abroad and in the market New York reports cotton goods quieter and sales of print cloths at Fall River were estimated at only 70,000 pieces versus 200,000 pieces previous week.

Compared with last season exports from the United States to Europe for week were 55,000 versus 176,000, since August 1 3,745,000 against 5,174,000, week's insight was 128,000 versus 182,000, since August 1, 8,405,000 against 10,920,000, spinners' takings of American for week were 137,000 compared with 159,000, since August 1, 6,977,000 versus 9,719,000, and the world's visible supply of American is 4,182,000 against 4,378,000, of foreign 2,178,000 versus 1,623,000, making a total of all kinds 6,360,000 compared with 6,001,000.

The immediate course of market will likely depend mainly upon labor and political developments in Europe. If the British coal strike is settled, market will probably advance, but if strike continues, values are apt to rule lower, especially if the miners are joined by the railway men and transport workers next week.

Notwithstanding the labor troubles in England, Liverpool cabled Manchester firm, with big business doing. Expect good demand for cotton soon. H. & B. BEER.

New York, April 1.—(Special.)—The conference between the war finance board and southern bankers is looked forward to as to its possible outcome. Any favorable action by the board will cause a generally better feeling through the entire cotton-growing states, as a little needed help at this time will not be amiss. A release of frozen credits will aid farmers and shippers materially. At the moment the trade is content to look on and await new factors, and until such time as fresh news presents itself we may look forward to a quiet and unchanged market, although eventually we expect a gradual improvement.

HUBBARD BROS. & CO.

New York, April 1.—(Special.)—Until today the cotton market has ignored the accumulation of adverse influences and during the period of its apparent strength sellers have covered and speculators have bought. The English coal strike, the financial and economic plight of France, the difficulty in conceiving of a satisfactory basis for the settlement of the adversities in European trade and contracting buying power in all countries, including our own, are the factors which are operating to undermine the price structure of all commodities. It is unfortunate that the constructive influences at work in this country to stabilize conditions are not sufficiently powerful to counteract the effect of the economic and financial disorder in Europe.

J. W. JAY & CO.

New York, April 1.—(Special.)—Trading today was in moderate volume until the afternoon when rather heavy selling developed apparently against spot cotton. Buying orders on a scale down for short account absorbed the offerings. While a great deal depends upon British news and that trades attitude scale orders under the market may sustain prices fairly well.

ORVIS BROTHERS & CO.

Dry Goods.

New York, April 1.—Cotton goods markets were quiet today. Print cloths were higher. There was a good retail demand for broad silks, and primary experienced a moderate activity. Wool goods manufacturers felt out the raw wool market, but little business of consequence resulted. Burlaps were nominal and inactive. Future shipments were easy because of the decline in exchange.

REVIEWS OF WEEK

Cleveland, April 1.—The Iron Trade Review today says:

With more tonnage now coming before the market, and releases of old orders growing, a more cheerful though subdued note is working its way through the iron and steel industry. Nowhere is there a disposition to expect a brisk revival of business in the near future, however. High costs and fractional operations despite sharp price reductions by many makers are a source of general dissatisfaction. Agricultural implement manufacturers in the west have joined with the automobile builders in drawing on the mills for more material. Steel demand for construction work continues to appear in better volume.

In an effort to bring costs more in line with present selling prices, further wage reductions by independent steel makers in April are probable. More independent operators in the Connellsville coke region this week have cut oven labor. Sheet and tin makers subscribing to the agreements with the Amalgamated association probably at the coming annual conference will request the elimination of some of the extra help charges which they declare add materially to production costs.

Actual or contemplated blowing in of idle blast furnaces at Portsmouth, Ohio; Erie, Pa.; Woodward, Ala., and Johnstown, Pa., which not broadly significant are a refreshing interruption of the steady shutting down of stacks in recent months. It is indicated this curtailment has been so drastic, that it now is found necessary to make some readjustments of production to meet an accumulated demand. This does not mean, however, that the putting out of furnaces has reached an end. Production of coke in the Connellsville region last week by a further loss of 40,000 tons is down to 20 per cent, the most depressed point since 1907. Rumors which have been current to the effect that certain subsidiaries of the Steel corporation had granted rebates in some cases from their quoted prices, it develops are without foundation.

The composite market average of The Iron Trade Review this week stand at $44.57. This brings the March average to $45.37 compared with $51.73 in February, $51.73 in January and $53.45 in December.

German competition in the world's steel market, of which considerable has been made in recent weeks, apparently has been exaggerated. Belgian material continues to be offered on the Pacific coast. Japan remains an active buyer of 30 gage black sheets and its different inquiries total probably 10,000 tons.

New York, April 1.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say:

Reaction from before Easter activity and a widespread cold wave, which latter appears to have damaged early fruit and vegetables, but not winter wheat, have robbed the apparently general tendency toward moderate improvement of much of its uniformity, according to telegrams to Bradstreets this week. On the whole, however, distributive trade seems to have fairly held its own, as has manufacturing and mining, gains in some lines of the latter offsetting losses elsewhere, whereas collections have again sagged after two weeks' improvement. The irregularity hitherto noted in reports from different branches of trade and areas of country is still manifest to perhaps a more extreme degree, and general characterization is just as difficult as ever except that it may be said that immediate need buying characterizes trading in spring goods, while fall buying, except in instances noted in recent weeks, is done with caution approaching timidity.

Weekly bank clearings, $5,453,373,000.

New York, April 1.—The attention of the cotton trade here has been pretty well divided between the less favorable news from abroad and reports from Washington that the administration was considering measures for financing the distribution of surplus cotton stocks, during the past week. The result has been a much restricted volume of business with prices showing a tendency to sag off under scattering liquidation which became a little more active during today's trading. Many contracts which had sold at 12.83 toward the close of last month broke below the 12 cent level this afternoon when sentiment with reference to the duration of British labor troubles and European affairs generally, appear to be more unsettled. Lancashire mills are supposed to have considerable coal on hand and it is believed that they can continue running on their present reduced schedules for some time, while private advices received from Liverpool this morning said that the beginning of the coal strike had been discounted. Liverpool was a moderate seller here late yesterday, however, and local brokers followed by special cables express doubt of any improvement in export business pending more settled labor and political conditions abroad. Some southern selling has been reported during the week but it has been comparatively light and the advance of crop preparations without any general increase in spot offerings has helped to sustain prices in the face of the unfavorable situation abroad. There has been no change in the news regarding acreage prospects and a report published by a Chicago authority toward the end of the week pointed to a reduction of 12,000,000 acres in the area to be planted as compared with last year, with a decrease of 70 per cent in the use of fertilizers. The proposed conference between the war finance corporation and southern bankers on Monday has been regarded as likely to result in some more definite plan for financing export business and Washington advices published here during the week have intimated that the department of commerce might be able to aid in the distribution or marketing of surplus supplies. The goods market here has been somewhat less active since the holidays but Manchester reported improving conditions there up to the beginning of the coal strike.

VACUUM OIL SELLS BIG ISSUE OF BONDS

The Vacuum Oil company has sold $20,000,000 fifteen-year 7 per cent gold bonds to the National City company, the Equitable Trust company, of New York; Chase Securities corporation, Blair and company, Inc., and Dillon Read and company. The Vacuum Oil company is one of the oldest and most firmly established oil companies in the world. It was incorporated under the laws of the state of New York in 1866. At the time of the dissolution of the Standard Oil company, of New Jersey, in 1911 all of the company's capital stock had been acquired and was held by the Standard Oil company. Pursuant to the dissolution plan, in accordance with the decree of the United States court, the company's stock was distributed pro-rata to the stockholders of the Standard Oil company, of New Jersey. The company is engaged in the refining of petroleum and the marketing of its products both in the United States and in foreign countries.

TURN HONEST PENNY WITHOUT ANY RISK

New York, April 1.—The neatest scheme to turn an honest penny on a dull day in "the street" has been discovered by a group of Wall street men. Here it is:

They sell American Telephone and Telegraph stock short, at 108½. Then they buy A. T. & T. bonds at 106. The bonds are convertible into the stock. So they turn around and convert them. Net profit, 2½ points on every share, without putting up a nickel.

Then they do it all over again.

TRADE COMMISSION CITES GROCERY FIRM

Austin, Nichols & Company Charged With Illegal Practices.

Washington, April 1.—Austin, Nichols and company, a Virginia corporation engaged in the wholesale grocery business with headquarters at Richmond, has been cited by the federal trade commission under the Clayton Act to answer complaints of illegal acquisition and consolidation of competing businesses, it was announced yesterday.

In 1919, the complaint sets forth, Austin, Nichols & Co., Inc., a New York corporation with headquarters in New York city, was one of the largest wholesale grocery concerns in the United States. At the same time Wilson and company, Chicago packers, controlled the Fame Packing company, operating eight vegetable plants in Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin; the Wilson Fisheries company operating five fish canning plants in Washington and Alaska, and a vegetable canning plant at Whiteland, Ind.

Anticipating the decree in the government suit enjoining packers from engaging in unrelated lines of business, the complaint further avers, Wilson and company entered into an agrement with stockholders of the Austin, Nichols and company and of the canning companies under its own control for a consolidation through a new corporation. This agreement, it is alleged, was carried out in the organization of the Virginia corporation now cited.

Prior to the consolidation, the commission was informed, the companies involved did a business in 1919 of $38,000,000, which constituted a substantial proportion of the wholesale trade in these commodities in a majority of the states. Since that time, however, the complaint avers, the public has not "enjoyed the benefit of this competition."

BRONCHO BUSTER CONFESSES GUILT IN BANK ROBBERY

Harrison, Ark., April 1. — Rufus Rollens today confessed that he was one of Henry Starr's companions when the latter was killed while attempting to rob the People's bank here recently, officers here announced. Rollens was sentenced on a plea of guilty to a charge of attempted robbery to serve three years in the Arkansas penitentiary. Rollens said he is a farmer and lives near Claremore, Okla.

Two other arrests are looked for as a result of the confession.

Rollens is champion "broncho buster" of the world, having won that title at Winnipeg, Canada, last year. He told Judge J. M. Shinn that the robbery here was his first attempt.

North Ave. Church Secures Famous Pastor for Revival

The North Avenue Presbyterian church, in securing an evangelist for the two weeks of revival services which begin with the morning service tomorrow, has been particularly fortunate in obtaining the services of the Rev. Charles F. Myers, of Greensboro, N. C., known as one of the strongest preachers in the south.

Dr. Myers is pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Greensboro, one of the largest and livest congregations in the state. In addition to being a great favorite in his city he is so well known and liked by the traveling men that large numbers arrange their trips so that they may arrive in Greensboro on Sunday in order that they may attend the services in his church. The result has been overflowing congregations with seats at a premium.

In view of the big work Dr. Myers is doing in Greensboro, the officers of the North Avenue church feel under deep obligations to their sister church in North Carolina for allowing him to come here for the revival.

During the two weeks from April 3 through April 17, Dr. Myers will preach every night except Saturday and at both services on Sunday. Sunday morning he will take for his subject "Hindrances," and Sunday night "Men Who Understand the Times."

Committee on Church Co-operation Plans

Murder, Negro Parks, Criminal Courts, Campaign of Evangelism Discussed at Regular Weekly Meeting of Committee.

The murder of the eleven men in Jasper and Newton counties, Georgia, the fitting up of a decent park for negroes in Atlanta, the criminal court of Atlanta and plans for the campaign to bring men, women and children into the church of Jesus Christ were before the committee on church co-operation at its regular meeting Monday of this week. The committee, which is the executive committee of the Christian Council of Churches in Atlanta, illustrates at these meetings practical and applied Christianity.

The Race Question.

The hour has come for the followers of Christ in Georgia to take and maintain a definite position with reference to the negro in the state. The sense of the meeting, which was recorded in the resolutions passed and published in the papers, was that, since God has called the black and white races to live together in Georgia, both races should realize the duty resting upon the stronger race to protect those of the weaker race, and that the destruction of both is inevitable if the white race does not exact justice to the black.

Negro Park Needed.

The same feeling was also apparent in the discussion as to the negro park situation in Atlanta. In a smaller city, such as Albany, a park has been long set apart for the negroes; but in Atlanta, where the need is greater, with thousands of negroes herded together with nowhere to go, nothing had been done until in 1919 six acres of ground were given by private parties and accepted by the city of Atlanta to provide a negro park. The land is known as Washington park, but calling it a park in its present condition is a joke. In 1920 one thousand dollars was appropriated by council to put the land in shape for use. Only $700 was spent. The park committee recommended to council an appropriation of $16,000 in 1921, $8,000 to get eight additional acres, the balance of $8,000 to be used in improvements. This was cut to $6,000, but when the budget was finally passed, nothing was provided.

Since 1919 the county commissioners have had before them the matter of putting the land in shape and providing a bathing place. The commission is understood to be committed to the work, but, so far, nothing has been done. The committee on church co-operation hopes that both the city and county will do the necessary work at an early date. Grant park, Piedmont park and Lakewood provide for our white people. Negroes are practically barred from these places. As the summer draws near their needs should be remembered and provided for before it is too late. This was the unanimous thought of the committee.

City Solicitor Present.

Solicitor Roy Dorsey, of the criminal court of Atlanta, met with the committee and gave an interesting picture of the work in the court over which Judge Andy Calhoun presides, and in which Mr. Dorsey is the prosecuting attorney. The trial of such a position in a court which, by the force of circumstances, must handle a vast volume of business, touching every phase of life, were feelingly described by the solicitor. The committee gained a clearer insight than its members had had before into the difficulties of being both merciful and just in such a court.

Mr. Dorsey mentioned one thing which should be borne in mind by every citizen of Atlanta at the present time. Our people are apt to forget the pressure that is brought to bear upon both the judge and the prosecuting attorney by the friends and relatives of the accused. Unless there is some outbreak of crime, the better class of citizens are inclined to leave the criminal courts alone. Prosecuting attorneys and judges should be made to know that they have the individual support and sympathy of those for whom the committee on church co-operation speaks, together with that of all other good citizens, in the unflinching enforcement of law and in the refusal to be swayed by sentiment. But in this, it was felt by members of the committee that it is up to Christian people and a Christian state to protect from physical suffering and actual want the innocent members of the families of persons convicted of crime. Blind tigers, thieves and gamblers often have wives and little children. The law is not framed to hurt them, yet necessarily often the law does this thing.

The Call of Christ.

But, at last, the only permanent cure for crime and the solution of the race question, and of all other social problems, must be found in convincing the individual of the truth of the gospel of Jesus Christ. The committee believes that those who profess to believe that gospel should practice its principles. Hence, the social program, with which goes evangelism.

The Protestant churches of Atlanta are now united in a campaign to win men, women and children for Christ. At all churches meetings are being held, and will be held during the coming week.

A Marked Day.

Monday is to be a day of days in this united campaign for Christ. At 10 o'clock the Evangelical Ministers' association meets at the Y. M. C. A.; Dr. Bailey, a visiting minister, holding services at the First Baptist church; Dr. Myers, a visiting minister, hold service at North Avenue, and Dr. Stowe, now conducting meetings at Wesley Memorial, all will be heard at the meeting of the Evangelical Ministers' association at the Y. M. C. A. at 10 o'clock in the morning.

At 11 o'clock, at the Baptist Tabernacle, there will be a union prayer service, led by Dr. W. W. Hamilton, superintendent of evangelism of the Baptist board. If there were ever in the history of the world an hour when prayer was needed, that hour is now. Therefore, it is hoped and urged by the committee that every Christian in Atlanta will consider conditions in Atlanta, in the state and in the world, and, laying aside every other matter for that hour, come to the Baptist Tabernacle.

VIVIANI CONFERS WITH G. O. P. CHIEF

Senator Lodge Discusses Mission Which Brought French Envoy to United States.

Washington, April 1.—Former Premier Viviani, of France, conferred today with Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, republican leader in the senate, and it was understood the mission of the French envoy was discussed at length.

In addition to seeking the moral support of the United States for France, senators who have conferred with members of the French mission said today that they had a definite impression of French opposition to adoption by congress of the Knox resolution to terminate the state of war with Germany. Although it was said Mr. Viviani and his associates were not to be understood as attempting to interfere with this nation's foreign policy, they are believed to view with concern any move in the United States, which might hearten Germany in opposing the allies' reparations policy.

The Viviani mission also was said today to seek American cooperation in various other ways. Mr. Viviani is prepared to invite an American agricultural mission to France and such an invitation may be extended unofficially here next week to representatives of all great American agricultural associations who are scheduled to confer.

Republican senators participating in the discussions with the French mission said they doubted whether the visit of Mr. Viviani would effect international policies of the United States. Those favoring adoption of the Knox resolution said the evident objections of Mr. Viviani and his associates to such action would not deter them in pressing it upon congress.

France is said to fear that a separate peace between Germany and the United States would cause immediate withdrawal of American troops in Germany, which might tend to strengthen opposition in Germany to acceptance of the reparations demands of the allies.

The statement that Mr. Viviani and his associates were not requesting financial aid from America nor cancellation of the French debt to the United States was supported by those who attended the discussions. It was said authoritatively that financial affairs of this country and France were not being considered by the mission.

SENATE TO ADOPT PEACE RESOLUTION

Present Intention to End "State of War" Speedily Is Readily Expressed.

BY LOWELL MELLETT,
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, April 1.—It is the present disposition of the United States senate to end the present "state of war" with Germany in about the first week of the coming special session of congress. Senators who had considered the possibility of affronting former Premier Viviani by the adoption of the Knox peace resolution and had thought it might be more courteous to wait until his departure, have changed their view and are ready to put the resolution through as one of the first acts of the session. They are now convinced that the resolution as worded when introduced by Senator Knox or as it can be worded, if the form is changed, need not indicate any lack of consideration for the views of the French.

Some thought has been given to the question of including in the resolution a clause specifically disavowing any recession from America's support of the allied cause, but senate leaders have about concluded that such an expression is not necessary. The only purpose of the resolution, they say, is to put an end to the present intolerable situation whereby the United States remains in a state of war technically, when, as a matter of fact, peace exists between this country and Germany. Whatever other action the government may determine upon with relation to foreign relations will not be affected in any way, they say, by formally declaring the peace that actually exists.

Talk of "a separate peace," they say, does not concern them, since that phrase grew out of antipathy toward the idea of making a separate peace while the allies remained at war. There will be no unfair encouragement for Germany, it is argued, since there is certain to be an expression from this government in some form indicating just where this country stands in the matter of Germany's obligation to pay the reparations due from her.

That is the attitude of the senate as at present ascertainable. Certain senators have taken the pains to poll the membership and say this is what they find. So far as the house is concerned, Chairman Porter, of the foreign affairs committee, coauthor with Senator Knox of the joint resolution, reports that his own inquiries have revealed that the house is ready to adopt the resolution as soon as it is brought up.

Senator Knox will draft the new resolution and expects to offer it in the senate very soon after the special session begins.

FRAME REGULATIONS AGAINST STOWAWAYS

U. S. Moves to Stop Political Prisoners From Landing as Seamen.

Washington, April 1.—Regulations are being framed by the department of labor to prevent stowaways landing in this country either by posing as seamen or by claiming to be political prisoners, it was announced today.

The proposed regulations would specify that no stowaway would be considered a seaman who was not so shown on the ship's articles.

The passport regulations upon which former Secretary of Labor Wilson based his executive order permitting Donal O Callaghan, lord mayor of Cork, a stowaway, to land as a seaman in order to "reship foreign" were wiped out inadvertently by congress on March 3, officials of the department of labor believe. They, with state department officials, however, have asked the attorney-general for an opinion as to whether these regulations were nullified with the repeal of war-time legislation the last day of congress.

3 MESSAGES FROM 30 METHODIST CHURCHES

1—TO THE DIFFERENT METHODISTS
(Overheard in Store)

Baptist to Methodist steward: "How's the meeting up at your church?" The steward replied: "I just haven't gotten there yet."

That's the crying difficulty of the hour—the many Methodists "that haven't gotten there yet."

If 80 Protestant churches, moving in solid phalanx, do not shake Atlanta, the world will laugh. Everything bad in Atlanta will be encouraged.

And it will be the SLACKER'S betrayal—YOURS.

2—TO THE EARNEST METHODISTS

Much to cheer the heart in the reports. Summon all your faith and pray yet more. Everything else to second place! Bring scores to the meeting and back God's cause and your pastor! Say, "I cannot look the MASTER in the face if I do not bring SOMEONE to Christ this time."

ENGINEERS TOLD OF VIADUCT PLANS

City Engineer Kauffman Says Project Will Lessen Congestion and Improve Terminal District.

Discussion of the Spring street viaduct at a meeting of the Atlanta chapter of the American Association of Engineers held Friday night at the Carnegie library, showed that the railroads and individual property owners are taking a deep interest in plans of the proposed project.

City Engineer C. E. Kauffman, with a complete layout of blue prints before him, explained with careful detail to the engineers and others present, the plans for the new viaduct as developed in the office of the chief of construction and told how it would harmonize with the plaza design, which is a conception of a "civic center" over the railroad chasm which has so long divided the heart of Atlanta.

Three variations of the viaduct plan were presented by Mr. Kauffman, two plans showing a considerable curve in the bridge well toward the middle, while in the third the curve, reduced somewhat, was at a point near the Spring street end.

Will Relieve Congestion.

Erection of the viaduct, said Mr. Kauffman, will be the first link that, aside from relieving tremendous traffic congestion now clogging the central streets, will improve the Terminal section and eventually lead to new passenger and freight station facilities.

As contemplated in designs already prepared, a plaza would extend from Washington street to the extension of Spring street, including a proposed joint Terminal station for all railroads and new freight station facilities.

"There is no question in my mind," said Mr. Kaufman, "but that we are going to have a handsome and economically built viaduct. What essential changes might be necessary in the plans could be made in thirty days, and we would be ready to go to work."

The bridge, as planned, will connect Spring street with the Terminal station plaza. It will be sixty feet wide, with a driveway forty feet in the clear. The spans will be twenty-two feet above the railroad tracks.

Another Plan Proposed.

At the end of Mr. Kaufman's explanation of the bridge designs, which had been followed with close interest by the engineers, a study was presented by H. R. Artman, district engineer of the Seaboard Air Line, proposing a better and shorter route across the railroad yards a viaduct starting from the terminus of Cone street at Marietta, one block east of Spring street.

But before Mr. Artman's proposal could become a reality the city would have to acquire the strip of property adjacent to the Federal Reserve bank, recently purchased by the bank for $180,000.

The viaduct, as Mr. Artman believes it should be located and built, starting at Cone street would be thrown directly across the railroad tracks, touch at the eastern end of the Central of Georgia freight depot, and run directly above Madison avenue to Hunter street, with approaches from Alabama street and Hunter. The bridge would be approximately 200 feet shorter than if connected from Spring street.

Nat Kiser's Suggestion.

This was the same suggestion in the mind of Nat Kiser, a property owner on Madison avenue. He said that if the city engineer's plans were conformed to and the landing made on the Terminal plaza, the Madison avenue district, from the terminal to Alabama street, would be left in a "pocket." He asserted that approaches from Alabama and Hunter streets would be years in coming, if at all, and declared that if the viaduct were run along Madison avenue, he would be willing to contribute $100 a front foot for his property on the street toward its erection, and he believed the other owners would be willing to do the same.

Chief of Construction H. L. Collier, president of the chapter, presided at the meeting. He thanked Mr. Artman and Mr. Kiser for their suggestions, and declared that the city welcomed any discussion of the proposal.

It is understood that the railroads will call an early meeting to go over the plans and they are also to be discussed further by property owners on Madison avenue and other contiguous streets.

Business Blocks Crumble to Ruin As Ground Sinks

Principal Street in Scranton Slowly Settling as Earth Gives Way.

Scranton, Pa., April 1.—Hundreds of people, driven from their homes by the fumes from broken gas mains and the peril of the earth falling in beneath them, are abroad in the streets of Scarnton, looking for temporary lodgings and a row of business blocks, on North Main avenue, is crumbling, due to the worst land-drag this city has yet experienced in the settling of ground due to the boring of coal mine tunnels beneath the streets.

North Main avenue where all the buildings between the Keystone bank and the Swartz block, have been thrown out of plumb with a crashing of windows and a crumbling of several walls, is one of the principal streets of the business section. Street car rails, twisted by the sudden sinking of the earth, caused the derailment of several street cars and the snapping of water mains has caused small floods.

The settling began Thursday night and continued Friday. Mining engineers are unable to predict whether it will cease or result in dropping the entire affected area, a ten-acre patch, into the black pits which reach about under the whole town. The zone now in trouble settled eight feet by inches during the last three years.

CASHIER OF BANK COMMITS SUICIDE, USING SHOTGUN

Augusta, Ga., April 1.—(Special.) E. L. Braswell, cashier of the Bank of Blythe, twenty miles from Augusta, committed suicide this afternoon by shooting himself with a shotgun. He left a note in which he explained that he had destroyed himself because of ill health. In the note he also gave directions for the disposition of his body. It is to be sent to Logansville, where his father lives. He also left a memorandum giving directions to the bank vault and explaining which of the directors knew the combination.

The affairs at the bank are understood to be in excellent condition. He left the bank at 1 o'clock in the afternoon to go to the home of Mrs. J. C. Powell where he took his meals, and where he roomed. He went to his room, where he wrote the note. The load from the shotgun entered his body directly over the heart. He was about 35 years of age and was a veteran of the world war. He was held in high regard by his associates.

SECOND TAXI DRIVER FOUND DEAD IN WOODS

Spartanburg, S. C., April 1.—G. M. Foster, local taxicab driver, was found dead this morning in a wood near where the body of Guy H. McDowell, another taxicab driver, was found Wednesday. Foster had been shot through the back of the head.

At the inquest over McDowell's body, the coroner's jury returned a verdict that "the deceased came to his death at the hands of parties unknown," but recommended that Foster and T. E. Lanford be held for investigation. Lanford, who was lodged in jail last night, has made no statement.

McDowell and Foster were chums. They left their cab stand together Tuesday, shortly after they had been talking to Lanford.

Officers have been working on the theory that they were lured to the woods by parties who had a grudge against them.
